

Nixon marks resignation in isolation

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI) — Richard Nixon marked the anniversary of his announcement that he was resigning the presidency Friday in the same isolation and silence that have been his life style for the past year.

There were indications, however, that Nixon is beginning to break out of the shell of privacy in which he has enclosed himself at his San Clemente home since he flew here Aug. 9, 1974, in the climax of the Watergate affair.

— Last week he played host to a party for about 20 fellow members of the "Cave Man Camp" of the Bohemian Grove, a group that meets yearly in a retreat north of San Francisco.

— Nixon is working about six hours a day on a book, already sold to a New York publisher, which is expected to span his entire career but "take his best shot" at defending his conduct in Watergate.

— NBC revealed Thursday that Nixon's agent, Irving Lazar, was negotiating for sale of an exclusive televised interview with the former President. The network said its discussion about purchasing such an interview had been mutually ended and that Lazar was talking with "others" who might pay more and agree to conditions of content.

— Nixon's phlebotic condition is controlled and his health such that he plays golf about once a week. He was said, however, to be about 10 pounds underweight, to tire easily and require 12 hours sleep a night.

Nixon has not set foot out of California since he flew here from Washington. He has, in fact, ventured out of his San Clemente estate no more than a dozen times and then no more than a hundred miles on pleasure drives, to a party in Palm Springs and to a hospital in Long Beach.

There are frequent visitors these days to the compound guarded by a contingent of 33 Secret Service agents although the "Cave Man" gathering was the first real social affair held there during the year.

President Ford called on him in a Long Beach hospital last November a few days after Nixon underwent surgery to prevent blood clots from reaching his lungs. Henry Kissinger has visited him here. Barry Goldwater and Ronald Reagan have paid calls.

His personal staff now apparently numbers four secretaries and Col. Jack Brennan, his former military aide who replaced his longtime personal secretary, Rose Mary Woods, who has retired on pension.

A UPI reporter telephoned the unlisted number at Nixon's office on the anniversary and asked the secretary who answered whether there might be any statement on the occasion.

"No, this is not a press office," she said.

Earlier optimism disappears

Gloom descends on Hoffa home, family

DETROIT (UPI) — Gloom and a news blackout fell Friday night on the summer home of James R. Hoffa where his family is awaiting word of the former Teamsters' president who disappeared nine days ago.

Hoffa's attorney son, James P., 31, kept reporters waiting two and a half hours for a scheduled news conference and then, looking downcast and agitated, declined to say anything.

He drove up to the Hoffa compound in Lake Orion, Mich., in his silver gray Lincoln and told the corps of newsmen who maintain a watch there he would be out with them "in a few minutes."

But he never emerged from the white frame and brick cottage. Instead a friend, Teamsters Business Representative Steve Riddle, emerged and said Hoffa would not talk Friday because he had no new information and the Hoffa family would have nothing more to say until today.

It was a marked change from the compound's atmosphere earlier, when young Hoffa and his sister, Mrs. Barbara Crancer, 37, St. Louis, Mo., exuded confidence their father was alive and would be with them again soon.

Mrs. Crancer told UPI later the cancellation of the news conference did not mean the family has lost hope Hoffa will return home.

"We didn't go out there and talk to reporters because we were emotionally exhausted," she said. "We're learning a lot of things but after awhile you just can't stand those questions anymore. That doesn't mean we have lost any hope."

Young Hoffa and his sister have been open with reporters since their father disappeared July 30. Hoffa has held twice daily news conferences at the cyclone fence surrounding the home and Mrs. Crancer, the most outspoken member of the family, has been constantly candid.

The brother and sister had appeared buoyant Thursday—strangely relaxed—as they kept their vigil with their ailing mother, Josephine. But late Friday the atmosphere at the cottage had obviously changed.

One thing which had not changed was the family's bitterness toward the man the elder Hoffa called "my second son," who had reportedly changed his alibi for himself and a reputed mafia chieftan the day Hoffa disappeared.

The Detroit Free Press reported Charles L. "Chuckie" O'Brien, the man Hoffa called his other son, had changed his story about seeing Detroit Mafia kingpin Anthony "Tony Jack" Giacalone in the Southfield, Mich., Athletic Club in the early afternoon of July 30, the time the former Teamsters union president disappeared.

Giacalone was one of three men Hoffa had told family and friends he planned to meet at a fashionable Bloomfield Township restaurant.

Spy boss mum on phone taps

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The director of the National Security Agency refused Friday to speak openly before a House intelligence committee about reports that the government intercepts communications by Americans with foreign countries.

Lt. Gen. Lew Allen Jr. refused to discuss the matter in open session of the House Select Committee on Intelligence and the committee chairman said White House representatives told the investigative panel the matter involved "extremely sensitive information."

But before the committee went into a two-hour closed session, another NSA official said that the agency believed it was legal to intercept communications involving Americans with foreign countries without court permission.

Chairman Otto Pike, D-N.Y., said Allen had "responded more fully" in secret session but had maintained that the monitoring of telephone calls, cables and computer communications had stopped, as reported by the Rockefeller commission.

When asked if he believed Allen's denial, Pike said, "You do get into semantics" and "I do not fully accept that."

Allen was about to begin reading in open session a 17-page statement on the NSA's budget when Pike raised the question of the interception of foreign communications by the NSA.

Pike said "representatives of the White House" — later identified as John Marsh, a White House congressional liaison — contacted him before Friday's session and "advised me that the area which we are now addressing involves extremely sensitive information."

"I came primarily to talk about the budget," Allen said. "It is going to be difficult for me to respond in open session."

Pike said that when foreign telephone calls were being monitored, "American citizens want to know how and why and whether they want to spend money on this operation."

"Now, does NSA intercept communications by Americans? You can tell us, yes or no."

He got no direct answer, but part of Allen's prepared statement said that the interception of electronic transmissions was one of America's "real secrets." When Pike pressed him to elaborate, Allen suggested a closed session.

Pike said a District of Columbia Appeals Court ruled that wiretaps, even for national security reasons, cannot be done without a court order. NSA Counsel Roy Banner intervened to say that the Appeals Court ruling applied only "where it is a domestic communication" and not to "overseas" communications.

"Are you telling us that the President advised you that it doesn't apply?" Pike asked.

"Our understanding is that it doesn't apply," Banner said.

Pike ordered a vote on going into executive session. It carried 6 to 3.

The chairman then ordered the room "cleared and swept." Television lights went out, the press and public left, and an electronics expert searched the committee room for hidden microphones.

Terrorists forced on dubious Libya

TRIPOLI, Libya (UPI) — Libya said Friday it accepted the Japanese Red Army terrorists who seized the U.S. Embassy in Malaysia and their colleagues only because of heavy pressure from Japan and Malaysia to let the 10 land.

The five-day drama that started when the guerrillas shot their way into the embassy in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia, Monday ended at the Tripoli airport when the Japan Air Lines DC8 landed with the terrorists, four volunteer hostages and the nine-man crew.

Windowless mini-ambulances sped the five guerrillas, one of them a woman, and the five Red Army members released from Japanese jails to Tripoli. Their eventual fate was unknown.

The two Japanese government officials and two Malaysian government officials rested before making the return flight to Tokyo.

Libyan Communications Minister Nuri Feituri said the guerrillas handed over their weapons and surrendered "without resistance" when the plane landed and added:

"High level pressure from Japan and Malaysia caused our decision to accept these men. We did accept this because of the humanity point of view and we wanted to arrive safe."

"I feel we did succeed in having everybody arrive safely."

Japan's official government spokesman, Ichitaro Ide, said in Tokyo that the government felt "deep regret" it was necessary to free five Red Army terrorists from jail in order to have their five comrades release the 53 hostages seized during the embassy takeover.

The hostages, who included U.S. Consul Robert Stebbins and two other Americans, reported that although they were held under a threat of death the guerrillas treated them well.

Malaysian authorities quarreled fiercely with Japanese officials for allegedly stalling in negotiations with the terrorists. At one point a Malaysian official threatened to "hijack" the Japanese plane in order to meet the guerrillas' demands.

Shapp may face jury on campaign allegations

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Gov. Milton J. Shapp of Pennsylvania, a possible contender for the 1976 presidential nomination, may be called before a federal grand jury to discuss an allegedly unreported $20,000 campaign contribution.

U.S. Attorney Blair A. Griffith said Friday a decision will be made early next week, perhaps Monday, whether to invite Shapp to appear. The controversy involves a contribution during Shapp's successful first campaign for governor in 1970.

Shapp, who gained national attention two years ago by helping to settle the nationwide truckers' strike, issued a statement through his press office in Harrisburg saying he would appear before the grand jury, if asked.

"While I have received no official notification that my appearance is desired, if I am invited, I will be glad to appear," Shapp said. "I would request that I be called promptly to end speculation on this matter."

"I have no knowledge of anything improper in this situation, but I will be happy to talk with members of the grand jury and cooperate with them in every way," Shapp said.

The contribution issue surfaced earlier this week when a western Pennsylvania engineering consultant told a grand jury here he gave Shapp two envelopes containing $10,000 each. The contractor, Michael Baker Jr., has received state contracts estimated to be worth $3-$5 million since 1971. He is also a trustee of Penn State University.

Baker, 63, Beaver, Pa., testified under a grant of immunity before a grand jury investigating possible corruption in the awarding of state contracts. Afterwards, he told reporters he gave Shapp the donations at private meetings in Beaver County and Pittsburgh hotels.

Earlier this week, Shapp issued a statement saying Baker had given him envelopes "which I assumed to be contributions to my campaign, and ... I turned them over to people working in the campaign committee."

The governor said, "I assumed these contributions were formally reported along with any others received."

Shapp's personal lawyer,

Alex Satinsky, was reported to be searching campaign files for information about the Baker donations.

Meanwhile, two attorneys for a former state House of Representatives investigating committee called on Shapp to make public his income tax returns to show whether he claimed the $20,000 from Baker as personal income.

J. Michael Willmann and Stephen F. Freind said they had not found the Baker contribution in 1970 campaign records.

The grand jury investigation already has led to the conviction of Frank C. Hilton.

Top steel maker to up prices

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — U.S. Steel Corp., the nation's largest producer, Friday announced an overall price increase of 3.8 per cent, but delayed implementation to help in the fight against inflation.

The company said prices on certain products would go down today, and increases for others would take effect Sept. 1 and Oct. 1.

The price increase was much less than the nine per cent boost announced earlier this week by Armco Steel Corp., the nation's fifth largest producer, and Wheeling-Pittsburgh Steel Corp., ninth largest. Other major steelmakers were expected to quickly follow suit with higher prices.

Following the U. S. Steel announcement, Armco said it was delaying its price increase "until further notice." Armco's increase originally was to become effective Sunday.

Ford administration officials and economists have warned that price increases for steel, aluminum and other basic industries might further fuel inflation.

A spokesman for Ford's Council on Wage and Price Stability called U.S. Steel's package of price increases and decreases "an interesting response."

Pa. board defers action

Doctor strike threat fades

HARRISBURG (UPI) — The threat that Pennsylvania physicians will stage widespread slowdowns and strikes this summer to protest increasing medical malpractice insurance rates dissolved Friday.

The Pennsylvania Medical Society's Board of Trustees announced it has postponed indefinitely an emergency meeting of the House of Delegates that had been scheduled for Aug. 13-14.

The delegates were considering plans to hold strikes, slowdowns and actions to protest recent increases of 200 per cent or more in medical malpractice insurance premium and to press for legislative action.

Dr. Cyrus B. Sease, of Kittanning, chairman of the board, said the emergency meeting was postponed because legislative leaders have promised quick action on a malpractice bill when the General Assembly returns Sept. 22.

"We see encouraging signs in the activity by the leadership of the legislature which we hope will produce a law that will ease the deepening health care crisis in Pennsylvania," Sease said.

"We want to be sure to see that efforts to design reform legislation are brought to a successful conclusion before taking the ultimate step of calling our House of Delegates back into session."

The society's House of Delegates held its first emergency session in early July but decided to see what the legislature would do with the pending malpractice legislation before taking any action.

When the legislature adjourned July 24 without passing a bill, the Board of Trustees decided to reconvene the Delegates' emergency meeting Aug. 13 in Harrisburg.

Cheap flights OK'd

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Civil Aeronautics Board Friday announced creation of two new types of low-cost charter flights, saying both would provide tickets and hotel accommodations at prices approaching — sometimes lower than — present ticket costs alone.

At least one major U.S. airline, Trans World Airlines, immediately challenged the action in a federal court suit.

The order, which takes effect Sept. 13 and will continue through March 15, 1980, comes at a time when recession and inflation have cut air travel sharply and when the CAB has been accused of protecting the airlines.

"We believe we ought to give the current deliberations every chance for success instead of calling the House into session, which could possibly result in drastic policy action by the membership," Sease said.

"We are hopeful that the current legislative effort will result in meaningful reform which will eliminate the need for emergency action by our House of Delegates."

Two bills dealing with the medical malpractice problem have been introduced.

"What we are trying to do is not divert any travelers from scheduled air transportation, but to make available new, low-cost air transportation to the public," a CAB spokesman said.

But TWA, which flies both domestic and foreign routes and is in serious financial trouble caused partly by the challenge of charter travel, filed suit against the CAB in the U.S. Court of Appeals in New York less than 30 minutes after the board announced its action.

"We're challenging it on the basis that the CAB exceeded its authority in approving it," said a TWA spokesman in Washington.

Jobless rate sets Pa. record

HARRISBURG (UPI) — Despite national improvements, unemployment in Pennsylvania July reached a 17 year high as an estimated 512,000 persons were out of work, the Department of Labor and Industry reported Friday.

Secretary Paul Smith said the total number of persons unemployed last month was the highest recorded for any July since 1958 and was 233,000 more than the number of persons out of work in July of 1974.

The seasonally adjusted unemployment rate rose from 9.1 per cent in June to 9.3 per cent in July, Smith said. The adjusted rate in July, 1975 was 5.1 per cent.

However, the July statistics may not be as accurate as usual because the 19-day strike in Bureau of Employment Security offices prevented processing of all unemployment compensation claims — which are key factors in computing the rate.

"In any event, it appears the situation worsened," Smith said.

There were also about 108,300 claims filed for extended federally financed benefits, bringing total claims in that one week to 551,928. The next week, which ended Aug. 1, total claims fell to 401,785, he said.

New Portuguese cabinet sparks anti-Red protests

LISBON, Portugal (UPI) — The installation of a new left-wing cabinet Friday triggered a wave of new anti-Communist violence and the spread of a swelling dissident movement within the ranks of the armed forces.

Anti-Communist crowds demonstrated and clashed with troops in the towns of Bombaral, Braganza, Fafe, Sao Joao da Pesqueira, Sao Pedro do Sul and Porto de Espada, news reports said.

A document signed by former foreign minister Maj. Melo Antunes and other leading moderate officers circulated in military units in different parts of the country and was being signed by a growing number of officers, army sources said.

It said the country was going too far left too fast, the sources said.

In Fafe, 200 miles north of Lisbon, a second man died Friday from wounds received Wednesday night when Communists sprayed a crowd with rifle fire.

Marines loyal to the leftist government, withdrawn from Fafe Thursday, were rushed back again Friday to disperse crowds with tear gas, newspapers reported.

In Lisbon, several hundred journalists marched in protest Friday night to protest a proposed law that would set up a board of military censors. The demonstrators shouted, "The information law is a Fascist law!"

Indira has vote probe immunity

NEW DELHI, India (UPI) — The Indian Parliament, spurred by Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's difficulties with the law, approved Friday a constitutional amendment barring courts from hearing cases involving the elections of prime ministers.

The upper house of Parliament approved the amendment, 161-0. It now must be ratified by a majority of the 22 state assemblies — expected Monday — and signed by President Akhruddin Ali Ahmed before it becomes law.

All members of the opposition were absent, continuing their boycott of the special parliamentary session called to approve Mrs. Gandhi's decree of a state of emergency in the nation.

The lower house passed the bill, 366-0, Thursday. Mrs. Gandhi's ruling Congress party has large majorities in both houses.

Mrs. Gandhi was convicted June 12 of election law violations in the 1971 parliamentary campaign that resulted in her being chosen for a second term as prime minister.

She appealed the conviction, but opposition political leaders began calling for her resignation. On June 26 her government ordered the nationwide state of emergency, instituted press censorship.

Foreign car sales probed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Treasury Department opened a formal investigation Friday to determine if automobiles imported from Europe, Japan and Canada were being sold in the United States at illegally low prices.

The case was the biggest ever brought under the antidumping acts of 1921, dwarfing an earlier investigation of Japanese-made television sets.

Assistant Treasury Secretary David MacDonald said Customs Bureau agents had uncovered preliminary evidence that the foreign-made cars were being "dumped" on the American market. This means the selling price in the United States was less than in the country where the car was manufactured.

The investigation involves autos made in West Germany, United Kingdom, France, Belgium, Italy, Sweden, Japan and Canada.

MacDonald admitted to reporters at a news conference that Treasury had "substantial doubt" the alleged low-price imports had hurt American automakers, who have been suffering through their worst sales season in years.

"We have that doubt because automobile industry officials have stated that the drop in domestic sales ... has not been caused by imports," MacDonald said.

Red China goes after strikers

HONG KONG (UPI) — More troops have been sent into factories in China's troubled Chekiang province to keep production going and halt spreading industrial strikes, provincial radio reports said Friday.

The broadcasts said men from air force units and more army troops went into the factories in late July to beef up a force of more than 10,000 sent in mid-July at the direction of central authorities in Peking.

The main trouble spot is Hangchow, the provincial capital, which President Richard M. Nixon visited during his 1972 trip to China.

A combination of strikes, go-slow actions, demands for higher wages, factional fighting and other undisclosed "sabotage activities" kept Hangchow in turmoil and closed to foreign visitors much of the past several months.

Earlier reports on the trouble in Chekiang indicated that much of it has been caused by young people resisting pressures to go work in the countryside.

Shortage may close industries

Gas-less winter foreseen

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Natural gas shortages this winter are expected to run 50 per cent worse than last season and could cause more unemployment because of factory closings, a White House spokesman said Friday.

Deputy Press Secretary William Greener told reporters that President Ford's energy and economic advisers estimate supplies will fall 15 per cent short of demands nationwide, compared to 10 per cent last winter.

The situation could be even worse in some areas, Greener said, particularly in Iowa, Missouri, Ohio, New Jersey, New York, North and South Carolina, Pennsylvania, Maryland and Virginia.

Shortages in Ohio and Pennsylvania could be three times the nationwide rate, he said.

Greener reported on a two-hour White House meeting Thursday in which Ford's advisers gave him a preliminary report on the work of an inter-agency task force studying the gas shortage and what might be done to alleviate it.

"The President reviewed various administrative actions he could take to help minimize" the impact, Greener said, but "no final decisions were made," and he could provide no details about options discussed at the meeting.

Another White House spokesman, John Carlson, said industrial users probably would be crippled first by a shortage and some factories might have to close, putting people out of work. Residential users would be the next to suffer, he said.

"It's very difficult to determine which industries will be hit first," Carlson said.

Ford has repeatedly called for deregulation of natural gas prices as an incentive to increased production. So far,

Congress has shown little enthusiasm for the proposal. The price of natural gas is limited to 52 cents per 1,000 cubic feet when sold across state lines. There are no controls on gas sold only in the state where it is produced.

Astronauts arrive in capital

WASHINGTON — The last Apollo astronauts, tanned after two weeks of Hawaiian recovery from their perilous return to earth, flew here Friday to receive the thanks of President Ford for their meeting in space with two Russians. Thomas Stafford, Vance Brand and Donald "Deke" Slayton landed at Washington's Dulles Airport aboard a United Airlines Boeing 747 at 4:50 p.m. "I couldn't feel better," said Slayton, the world's oldest spaceman and one of America's original seven Mercury astronauts, who made his first trip beyond earth's atmosphere on the Apollo-Soyuz flight. The other crewmen indicated all were fully recovered from the poisonous nitrogen peroxide fumes they breathed during the last minutes of their descent to earth July 24.

LBJ pal charged with fraud

SAN ANGELO, Tex. — A state district judge Friday ordered former presidential assistant Jake Jacobsen to go on trial Sept. 22 on charges he misappropriated $825,000 from a San Angelo savings institution. Judge Curt Steib of the 199th District Court also set a Sept. 12 pretrial hearing for the silver-haired attorney, who was an advisor to President Lyndon Johnson, a fund raiser for President Richard Nixon and a friend to John Connally.

City gets extortion threat

EVERETT, Wash. — Mayor Bob Anderson of Everett disclosed Friday an extortionist has demanded $1 million from the city, threatening that if the money was not paid "the people of Everett will suffer or die." Anderson said the demand, received in mid-July in writing followed by a phone call, came prior to a rash of arson fires in the city and the bombing of the federal building here. Eleven arson fires, two of them in fire stations, were set the night of July 31 and morning of Aug. 1. A pipe bomb exploded early the morning of Aug. 5 in the federal building.

Angola liberators fight it out

LUANDA, Angola — The National Union for the Total Independence of Angola has abandoned its neutral stand and joined the fighting between two other rival liberation movements in this West African country, a Union spokesman said Friday. Nzau Puna, secretary-general of the Union, told newsmen its troops opened fire on a unit of the Moscow-oriented Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola after it attacked a National Union training camp, killing about 150 recruits. He said the attack took place in southern Angola, traditionally a National Union stronghold, several days ago.

DRBC rejects N-plant delay

TRENTON — A Delaware River Basin Commission hearing officer Friday rejected an environmentalists' effort to delay a final ruling on construction of a Philadelphia Electric Co. nuclear generating plant on the Schuylkill River. The DRBC said the company's application for approval of the Limerick plant south of Pottstown, Pa., will be considered Aug. 27 in Philadelphia. The Pennsylvania-based Environmental Coalition on Nuclear Power sought the delay. The proposed plant, one of the nation's largest, would generate 2.2 million kilowatts and evaporate 30 million gallons of Schuylkill River water a day.

Israel hopeful over talks

TEL AVIV — Israeli officials expressed optimism Friday over apparent progress in indirect negotiations with Egypt on a second Sinai troop withdrawal accord. One Israeli report estimated the chances of success at 70 per cent. "The feeling is optimistic and the appraisal is a hopeful one," one official source said. The officials said Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger may resume his Middle East shuttle by the third week of August to put his personal seal on a new pact.

Jazz great Adderly dies at 46

GARY, Ind. — Jazz saxophone great Julian "Canonball" Adderley died of cardiac arrest Friday in a hospital where he was taken four weeks ago after suffering a massive stroke. He was 46. Adderley was born Sept. 15, 1928, in Tampa, Fla., and spent much of his early life in Florida. He made his debut at Cafe Bohemia in New York in 1955 and with his brother, Nat, organized a touring band the same year. Success came fast and he joined the Miles Davis group in 1957 and was with George Shearing two years later. He recorded for Capitol records and he was a favorite at jazz festivals in Newport and New York. Downbeat named him new alto sax star of the year in 1959.

GI sues officer over letter

HEIDELBERG, Germany — An American serviceman has filed criminal charges against a woman officer for opening and giving his superior a love letter he sent to a man in the United States, the soldier's lawyer said Friday. Spec. 4 Neil B. Thomas, 27, accused Capt. Christine F. Stagle of wrongfully and unlawfully opening and stealing his letter before it had been delivered to the addressee.

Pike health disaster plan may generate confusion

MILFORD — Col. Daniel Sullivan, Pike County's civil defense administrator, was critical Thursday of a regional health agency's document designed to stimulate disaster planning.

In Sullivan's opinion, a regional disaster plan outlined by the Health and Hospital Planning Council (HHPC) is full of "fallacies" and would duplicate efforts of the county civil defense office.

HHPC had intended that the Planning Guide for Disaster Medical Care in Northeastern Pennsylvania be used as an outline for joint disaster planning between counties and medical organizations.

Asked by Pike County Commissioners to comment on the HHPC plan, Sullivan wrote a two-page letter that listed criticisms of a proposed "package disaster hospital", emergency operation center and medical emergency staff.

Sullivan maintained that a county disaster medical organization, outlined in the plan, would duplicate the county civil defense staff.

"I can find no logical reason for this duplication, especially with the shortage of qualified manpower in Pike County," Sullivan said.

"It (the disaster organization) would double the number of people attempting to make decisions in an emergency, and thus open up the possibility of unnecessary confusion and error."

He felt that an emergency medical staff would "preempt many of the responsibilities of the civil defense staff," while an emergency operation center would double "county require-

Power plant in service on Rte. 940

STROUDSBURG — Pennsylvania Power & Light Company has placed in service its new Lake Naomi Substation north of Route 940 near the lake.

The $857,000 substation project included the construction of nearly five miles of 138,000-volt double circuit transmission line to serve the station with power from PP&L's regional supply system. Initially the line is being operated at 66,000 volts on a single circuit, James P. Walton, PP&L's Pocono area manager said.

An additional electrical source, the substation reduces 66,000-volt power to 12,000 volts for distribution to homes and businesses in the area. Load growth in the Crescent Lake, Emerald Lakes, Pocono Crest, Stillwater Lake and Lake Naomi developments required the new substation, Walton said.

To minimize the effect on the surrounding area, the substation has low structures and its major equipment is green. Distribution lines leaving the substation are routed underground and the substation will be landscaped.

Hot days blamed for woes

By NORMAN B. LEHDE
Hot weather conversation.
"What do you think of the governors voting against the Tocks's Island Dam?"

"It made me aware of how much I liked governors."

"Does this mean we may never see those thousands of people that were all supposed to visit the area?"

"I hope so."

"But, wasn't the recreation angle and all the local business that it was going to generate responsible for changing many attitudes in regard to the Tocks project in the earlier years?"

"Yes. It caused many people to change from thinking about how green is my valley to how many greenbacks will be floating around when the valley was flooded."

"If land hadn't been purchased for the National Recreation Area, don't you think it would have been acquired by land developers?"

"Yes. That's one of the things I like about the National Recreation Area."

"Then you are one of the people who would favor having the land that would have been in the reservoir area included in the park?"

"The idea is so practical."

I'm afraid the government will be against it."

"I'm a little confused about Route 209. Won't the trucks still run on this highway if the dam project is abandoned? Shouldn't it be widened or relocated, or both, anyway?"

"What did I just tell you about practical things?"

"I understand the Mayor of Milford got a parking ticket the other day."

"Anything can happen in this weather."

"Doesn't there seem to be a great deal more vandalism around town this summer?"

"Either that or Halloween is starting earlier."

"Do you suppose people who pull out garden vegetables and break trees need psychiatry?"

"A kick in the slats would be cheaper."

"But we can't recommend brutality just to protect property."

"Oh, I would recommend it to protect your property but, I get awfully mad when something happens to mine."

"Isn't that inconsistent?"

"What can you expect in this weather?"

Kindergarten question vital

When a school district has to cut its budget, its prime consideration is to maintain as high a quality of education as possible, consistent with the financial realities.

In the case of the Stroudsburg Area School District, a number of programs were curtailed, apparently to no great disadvantage. But in trying to save on transportation costs (which are bound to rise with the expected cost increase for gasoline) the district also rearranged the kindergarten schedule, and parents are, to put it lightly, disturbed about the change.

The district is experimenting with a plan that would have one group of kindergarten children attend school for a full day one quarter (nine weeks) at a time. In other words Sally Smith, age 5, would go to school all day from September 3rd through October 31st, be on "vacation" from that date until December 24th, and resume the class schedule from January 5th until March 5th. (All dates are give-or-take-a-day types, gleaned from the district's calendar.)

Her neighborhood friend would attend in between those chunks of school time, from November 3rd through December 24th and from March 8th to the first or second week in June. Again, those dates are tentative. Indeed, the whole schedule is tentative, for school administrators aren't sure at all how the routine will work out. It will be tried for the first two quarters and, if everything seems to be going along smoothly, it will be continued for the balance of the school year.

Administrators are the first to admit that the proposed schedule is less than ideal. But something had to give, and the previous schedule (half the kindergartners attending in the morning and half in the afternoon, the whole school year) meant twice as many bus trips, hence twice the transportation expense, as the proposed calendar.

But concerned parents have brought up some valid objections, among them worry that the "first-and-third" quarter students will be ill-prepared for a full-day, full-year school schedule when they enter the first grade the following September — fully five months after they last saw teacher and last sat in a classroom.

Every teacher will acknowledge that how a child is prepared for school has quite a bit to do with how well that child will do for the remaining 12 or 16 years of educational institutionalization that faces him. To be sure, kindergarten hardly qualifies as "school" as we remember it, but our own personal experience is that a good kindergarten experience helps immeasurably in preparing the child for the test to come.

Those parents concerned over the proposed pre-primary program probably number among them a few who are disturbed because the built-in baby-sitting aspect of kindergarten is short-circuited. But many, many more voice genuine concern for the educational well-being of their children.

When they meet with district administrators and the school board on August 20, their comments and concerns deserve close, understanding and sympathetic hearing. We recognize the need to save money, but we cannot condone money-saving actions that jeopardize the future of children whose introduction to the educational process at their age is more pertinent and effective than any number of remedial programs several years later, when the damage has been done and negative attitudes already formed.

That's a reason?

Stroudsburg Borough Council's inaction on the reapportionment issue Wednesday night was disappointing mostly because of the reason given.

In effect, what the board said was that it would continue with the status quo until forced by the state to make a change — even knowing the five councilmen now represent widely disparate numbers of people and that the gap will grow as new housing in the Fourth Ward is occupied.

"Why do anything now? Why spend any money now? Nobody in Harrisburg will say anything about it." Those were the arguments of Second Ward Councilman Howard Popkin.

And the others, those who said they favored going to a seven-member at-large system and those who said they preferred to maintain the wards and realign them, quietly went along.

The five wards were drawn by a three-member commission in 1912. They haven't been changed since, as far as we know.

Since 1968, when the state legislature adopted a revised Constitution requiring wards to have equal populations, Stroudsburg has found no reason to act.

"Force us, cram it down our throats so we can complain about state intervention on the local level," they say. "If you don't, we'll stick with what we have now. We'll stick with what we know."

We always thought that if you don't want someone to tell you what to do, you do it yourself first.

New Left honors Abraham Lincoln Brigade—typically

In its July 31 issue, the quasi-underground paper Rolling Stone ran a long and celebratory article on the Abraham Lincoln Brigade. These were American volunteers, largely Communist and serving under Communist auspices, who fought on the Republican side in the Spanish Civil War. There is nothing remarkable about the appearance of the article in Rolling Stone — the politics of that paper is standard New Left — except that the author of the article was Gloria Emerson of the New York Times, not long ago a principal New York Times correspondent on the scene in Vietnam.

Let us for a moment go back three or four years, to the time when the Vietnam war was a burning and divisive issue in American politics. Gloria Emerson's regular dispatches from the scene were not "news." They were mood pieces, designed to capture the essence of things in some small incident. Week after week they appeared, sometimes on the front page, and their quality was inimitable. The closest thing in my experience to the Emerson mood was the soap-box radio serial, Stella Dallas. Emerson wrote tear jerkers.

At one point in 1972, the Saigon government was trying to resettle in the South some farmers from exposed Quangtri province in the North. Here is the special Emerson music:

"The refugees many of them barefoot stood on the shiny airstrip early yesterday morning holding clumsy bundles and shivering babies and looking fearful of the big American warplanes and the long voyage ahead. . . The United States mission in Vietnam has been severely criticized for its relocation programs, which were often considered of little or no benefit to the Vietnamese who were forced to move. . .

Contrasting write-up

Just by way of contrast, here is how another Times reporter wrote up the same relocation program four days later: "After the heartache and uncertainty of leaving home, and a short-lived epidemic of airsickness, the 1,500 pioneers of South Vietnam's most ambitious refugee resettlement project are taking over their new village and say they are eager to start a new life. For the swarming families who arrived here last Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, the move looks like a good deal. 'This is good land, much better than I had up there,' said Le Tiet, a fifty-year old farmer."

From the thousands upon thousands of words filed from Vietnam by Emerson, let us

The Money Book: Why it's hard making ends meet

(Sixth of 21 columns)

You know how fast prices have been rising for everything. You also know that you have never earned so much money as now, nor had such good prospects.

You feel confident that you are an excellent money manager. You also feel poorer than a year ago, more pinched than ever.

Why?

I am sure this question is echoed in tens of millions of homes in every area of the land and in every income bracket. I am sure too that most of you are not prepared for the complexities of an honest answer. Thus, here are the real reasons you find it so hard to make ends meet on the biggest income of your life.

Real Reason No. 1: At every level of government over the years, taxes have been rising along with the cost of living and therefore you mislead yourself into thinking you are richer than you actually are.

Your income is not your gross: it is your net after taxes and after allowing for a continuing high rate of inflation, even though price increases may be only modest in some years.

Say you're the sole support of a family of four who earned $10,000 just a few years ago and have had increases of 30 per cent since. Do you have $13,000 to spend? No. Your new high pay is actually worth less in the market place than your $10,000 was worth because of the erosion in your dollar's value due to inflation and to the bite of soaring Social Security taxes as well as higher income tax rate on your rising earnings.

What I am trying to smash home to you are the realities of taxes and inflation, for only when you face these realities will you stop kidding yourselves and start adopting the money-management policies which will help protect your family.

Real Reason No. 2: You are using far more services than ever before and all services cost far more than ever before. You have, in short, chosen to live in a "service society" and you must pay the price.

Let me illustrate this with a list of my own activities on two long work-play days in the country recently. I took an early morning golf lesson; called the typewriter repairman to fix my new electric portable; paid the piano tuner for his regular quarterly visit; phoned our broker to confirm a decision on our stock account; arranged to have my teeth cleaned and to get my annual physical checkup; had lunch in a nearby restaurant with two economics professors; had my hair and nails done, and dropped off the laundry and dry cleaning on the way; had a lengthy talk with my housekeeper about the need to call the plumber, the electrician, and the exterminator to check the house;

Panama another Vietnam?

WASHINGTON — The American people need to know, before it is too late, that the tinder of another Vietnam is now being touched to match in Congress — heedlessly, recklessly, relentlessly.

Undoubtedly every member of Congress is convinced that he would walk on burning coals before he would do that. They sincerely believe it. But we better bring this smoldering fire into the open in the hope it can be soon be put out.

The trend of action is ominous; the momentum is on the side of peril.

Already by a vote of 246 to 104 the House of Representatives has served notice on President Ford demanding that he break off negotiations forthwith for a new Canal Treaty with Panama.

Already enough opposition votes have been mobilized in the Senate — even before the treaty has been presented for ratification — to insure its defeat.

This treaty has been under the most patient, careful, good-faith negotiation under the watchful eye of one of America's most senior and experienced diplomats, Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker.

Kicked into ditch

If it is kicked into the ditch by Congress, a most dangerous chain of events will be touched off. The end could be a bloody war on the American continent.

The unfair, one-sided Panama Canal Treaty imposed in attempted perpetuity on a little, weak Latin American country by Teddy Roosevelt in an act of gunboat diplomacy is indefensible and intolerable in today's world of vanishing colonialism. It has to be brought up to date.

It has been brought up to date, and Ambassador Bunker can certify that U.S. property interests and U.S. security interests will be better protected by it than by trying to clamp down on legitimate Panamanian nationalism by shutting in the U.S. Marines.

The blood of Panamanians and Americans has already been shed as these negotiations at times looked hopeless of achievement during the past several years.

I know of no one close to the facts who does not foresee an explosion if this wisely negotiated treaty is torn up by an impetuous act of Congress and the government of Panama is told: "Go peddle your papers."

It will almost inexorably get the United States into a kind of war where we would find the whole world shrinking from us and condemning us rightly.

We would win, sure. We could sink Panama without a trace, but at what a price! And all so unnecessary.

This time it would be Congress and not the President getting us into such a war.

Is this what Congress meant when it said "No more Vietnams"?

If not, then pray that the new Panama Canal Treaty can be guided around the shoals of congressional shortsightedness.

select one other choice item, from 1971. This time she rated five columns on the front page of the Sunday edition. Ostensibly, the story concerns some minor skirmishing around the obscure village of Bachuc. Four South Vietnamese had been killed, and some villagers injured, by Vietcong mines in the neighborhood. The moral of this strange item is presented by Nguyen Van Sam, a Bachuc "religious leader," who says, according to Gloria Emerson: "Between death and injury, death is perhaps easier for us. We are very poor. If a villager loses an arm or a leg his family will suffer, for he can no longer work." Accompanying all this is a large frontpage photo of Tran Thi Nam, a "mother of eight," who lost an arm and a leg in a Vietcong mine blast.

All of this, of course, issued in an implicit but very loud message. If you supported Vietnamization and continued resistance to a Communist takeover, you wanted to blow the limbs off the "mother of eight" and by inference wanted the "eight" to starve.

Miss Emerson concluded these heart-rending proceedings, and by this time the reader was about ready to turn himself in as a war criminal, with another quotation from the ever obliging Nguyen Van Sam: "God cannot hear what we are trying to say. We are choked by the hands of the government, so we cannot shout out."

God might not have been able to hear, but the reader certainly did. It was not enough that the U.S. withdraw its troops. The war itself had to stop, and whatever the consequences.

Now let us return to the present, things having been tidied up in Vietnam. Miss Emerson not only wrote the long paean to the Lincoln Brigade for Rolling Stone, but along with 1,300 other enthusiasts attended the 38th anniversary celebration in New York's Statler-Hilton Hotel. Steve Nelson and other Brigade veterans made speeches. Nelson is national commander of the veterans of the Brigade. He has also been identified by Louis Budenz as a Soviet espionage agent.

Official welcome

The official Communist organ Daily World welcomed the anniversary, and was not shy about identifying the genesis of the Brigade. "The Lincoln Brigade was not a spontaneous immaculate conception. . . It had its origin, inspiration, and organizing genius somewhere. That was the Communist Party of the United States."

The kind of thing is usually discreetly overlooked, but it is common knowledge. The Lincoln Brigade was the American unit. Josip Broz, later Tito, a Communist functionary, ran the overall transport operation in Paris. The German contingent was named after Ernst Thaelman, a German Communist, etc.

As the editors of Rolling Stone reminded the youthful audience for Gloria Emerson's article, the Lincoln Brigade is a "stirring reminder that Americans did once fight on the side of democracy."

took my car to the local garage for its New York State inspection; made notes about what I was doing as I went along.

What was the characteristic that linked each of my activities? Each was or involved a service, a service clearly reflecting our affluent society — costing more than ever before.

Never have virtually all services cost so much. In recent years the upsurge in the cost of services has dwarfed the rise in all consumer prices — with the most severe pinches in the huge areas of education, hospital fees and interest rates.

There is no doubt about the uptrend of service costs in general. The only question — the only one — is the degree of rise.

Real Reason No. 3: For years you have been continually upgrading your demands — turning the luxuries of yesterday into the necessities of today. You have come to feel entitled to increases in your living standards and accustomed to boosting your spending budget, to new records each year. Because of this attitude, you are inclined almost routinely to overspend and then to feel pinched when you wake up to the fact that you have spent more than the amount of your raise.

You have been translating the pipe dreams of the 1950s into the tangible possessions of the 1970s — and translating pipe dreams costs money.

You well may feel you're going broke on the highest income of your lives, but if you will look honestly at how you live, you might ruefully conclude that you're at least going broke in style.

RUFFLES AND RIPPLES — Liquid Pocono pastoral stretches from shore to shore, languidly inviting the casual visitor to plunge into the limpid depths — one of the sparkling blue jewels that surprises and pleases those to whom the many-faceted beauty of the Poconos is yet an unknown quantity.

Inaction on flood insurance could hurt township

By MAUREEN RUFE
Pocono Record Reporter

"Are we going to let this motion die for lack of a second, fellas?" Those words may just be written on the tombstone of Hamilton Township Supervisor Chairman Bob Field if he has to repeat it at many more township meetings.

At least twice, and usually more times during a given regular business meeting, Field will make a proposal or suggest that the supervisors take action on a particular matter. Fields' words are followed by dead silence. Finally, after a long pause, Field utters his ever popular, "Are we going to let it die?" and the issue is laid to rest without any discussion.

On many of the matters that have been brought to the floor and died immediately afterward, the lack of positive action probably had little, if any effect on the township.

One of the supervisors' latest actions, or should we say lack of action to adopt federal flood insurance, however, may come back to haunt supervisors Ray Mackes and Loren Fenner.

Money from the township general fund was used to prepare the initial application for filing for federal flood insurance. The appropriate flood plain maps were drawn up and the necessary legal and engineering work was completed. All that was needed was the passage of either the township's proposed building permit ordinance or zoning ordinance.

Although Field was persistent in trying to get some action on one of the proposed ordinances, Fenner and Mackes would not go along with the chairman and the opportunity to file for federal flood insurance ran out.

Why did Fenner and Mackes authorize payment for services to begin filing the application if they never intended to complete it? The outlay of township expenses in the matter, is little, however, compared to what the future ramifications of the inaction might be.

Firstly, the supervisors may have cut their own throats with regards to possible funding for the restoration of the Old Mill in Sciota. With it being situated directly on a creek, it seems dubious that any federal, state or private foundation will be quick to come up with funds for restoring a building that is susceptible to flooding but has no insurance.

And if no federal, state or foundation funds are available to the mill, the taxpayers in Hamilton Township will either have a big bill to pay for the restoration or they will not see the mill fully restored. Either way, the residents of Hamilton Township will lose.

Secondly, many residents who own real estate in flood plain areas and along municipal streams, are already complaining that their property value has gone down substantially because the supervisors have not acted to make federal flood insurance available.

The property owners claim that they will not be able to sell their land because potential buyers will not be able to get mortgage money to build homes in areas where flooding will not be covered with insurance.

There have been many actions in the past that both Mackes and Fenner have let die rather than second, but in the case of the federal flood insurance, their silence is not likely to be forgotten in the near future in Hamilton Township.

Ann Landers

Monotony

Dear Ann Landers: Regarding the husband who had to look elsewhere because his wife was "too tired, too busy, or not in the mood": I was interested in your cop-out response that "many women have the same complaint and isn't it a shame they can't reshuffle the deck and put the too tired, too busy and out-of-the-mooders together." Try this for size:

A fifth grader got up in English class and said, "In the U.S., a man can have only one wife at a time. This is called monotony."

From the mouths of babes, maybe?

A Philosopher

Dear Phil: I'm sure it's monotony for many, but it doesn't need to be if at least one person has imagination and care enough to keep the physical side of marriage exciting.

Nothing lasts, including sexual excitement, unless you work at it.

Dear Ann Landers: I am 13 years old and am writing this letter not for myself but for my four younger brothers and sisters. They are 11, 10, 9, and 6.

Our parents don't miss a night to fight. We are fed up with the yelling and screaming and name-calling, door-slaming and plate-throwing.

Dad works hard and is a great guy. The minute he walks in the door Mom hits him with a list of complaints. He tells her to shut up and then the battle is on.

After the fight is over, Mom cries and says Dad doesn't love her. She is wrong. He loves her a lot. But if he didn't, would you blame him? Who wants to get chewed out all the time?

Please help us straighten these two out. We don't want our family split, but this is no way to live.

Five Unhappy Kids

Dear Kids: I hope every pair of battling parents who sees your letter will pretend it was written by their children. (Too bad you were so explicit about your number and ages.)

Your mom and dad need a third party to sit down with them, listen to the complaints from both sides and set up some House Rules. This means counseling.

There are many places they can go — The Salvation Army, YMCA, to their clergyman, Catholic Charities, or to the county or state mental health society. Please show them this column and tell them I hope they get moving.

many eggs to put in a sponge cake, what to do about cockroaches and a dog who snores.

When I have been unable to find a number, because the person doesn't know how to spell the name or give any clue to the address, I've been cussed out in language I wouldn't write and you couldn't print.

I hope you will print this letter so the public will get wise to itself and have some consideration for us telephone employees who are trying to earn a living, like everyone else.

Blistered Ears

Dear Ears: Don't expect miracles. "The Public" is "people" and it takes all kinds to make a world.

What kind of wedding goes with today's new life styles? Does anything go? Ann Landers' completely new "The Bride's Guide" tells what's right for today's weddings. For a copy, send a dollar bill, plus a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope (10 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Dear Ann Landers: I took a job as a telephone operator four months ago and it has been an education in human behavior. I had no idea there were so many crazy, stupid, rude and downright foul-mouthed people in the world.

Can't cut ties yet

By Jean Adams

18: (Q.) Ever since I turned 18 my parents have been on my back. When I go out and get home around 2:30 a.m. or 3, they throw fits and ground me for a month sometimes.

I think that at the age of 18 I am old enough to care for myself. I know they care about me, but I think they should let go of the ties and let me do what I want. I may get hurt doing it but then I will know not to go out and do it again.

I think they should let me live my own life. What do you think?

NO FREEDOM IN NEW JERSEY

(A.) A young man or a young woman is subject to parental rules as long as he or she lives in their home. It is not possible for them to cut all the ties as long as they are responsible for you — and they ARE responsible, even if not so much as formerly.

Try to work out an agreement on hours and conduct that is acceptable to all of you.

BECAUSE: (Q.) I broke up with Tony because my friends didn't like him. But I love him a lot. What shall I do?

SAD IN OKLAHOMA

(A.) You chose a very poor reason for breaking up. You should make your own decisions without your friends. Only you know yourself well enough to do this. Listen to your friends' opinions and advice, yes. But do the deciding yourself.

If you decided Tony is important enough to you, tell him why you broke up with him, and that it was a mistake, and ask him to be friends with you again.

He may be willing to, or he may not. At least he will know.

DISCOVERY: (Q.) I'm going with Rich. He smokes and drinks and is a drug addict. He goes around with a gang. They can beat up any kid they choose.

When I started being his girl friend I knew nothing about all this. I want to break up with him because I don't want to get into trouble, but he doesn't want to. How can I?

SADDER BUT WISER IN WISCONSIN

(A.) It doesn't take two to break up. One can do it. You can do it. Tell Rick "that's all". And be sure it is.

If all girls who discover that they are in deeper than they had counted on would take positive action of this sort, there would be a lot fewer unhappy girls.

(Write to Dr. Jean Adams, care of The Pocono Record, P.O. Box 2402, Houston, Texas 77001. Every letter is read, but because of the great number received Dr. Adams cannot send personal answers.)

Opening lead — ten of diamonds.

They say that he who hesitates is lost, and there are times when this also applies to bridge.

Consider this deal played by Tim Seres, Australian star. West led a diamond, won with the king, and Seres played a heart to the queen. East pondered a while and finally played the three of the queen.

Had East taken the queen with the ace and returned the jack of hearts, he would have run into a squeeze. Declarer would cash six clubs, discarding a heart and two spades

A diamond to the ace would then put East out of commission.

Had East played a low heart quickly at trick two, Seres might have tried to score his twelfth trick later on with a heart lead to the king.

But, convinced by the lengthy huddle that it was East who had the ace, Seres cashed the ace of diamonds and five club tricks, producing this position:

He then led the nine of clubs, discarding a spade from dummy, and whatever East discarded Seres was bound to make six notrump.

SPECIAL POWER — Crash tests of cars, pictured here, will be shown as part of the "ABC News Closeup on Autos: Spoiled by Success?" Friday from 10 to 11 p.m. on the ABC Television Network. The tests demonstrate the dangers resulting from the absence of restraints (above) and the safety advantages provided by air bags (below). The documentary special looks at the economic power of the auto industry and examines the safety and energy consumption of its cars.

Jack O'Brian's

New York's Voice of Broadway

NEW YORK — One of the most ambitious war films to go before the cameras will start to roll next April — Cornelius Ryan's "A Bridge Too Far," under the aegis and eagle eye of veteran movie showman Joseph E. Levine.

What had made him decide to embark on this project — more than 30 years after the event? We caught Levine in a talkative mood and this is what we caught:

"The book is an international best-seller, especially in Europe — and particularly Holland, where the action took place. Cornelius Ryan's story encompasses soldiers of all ranks and all nationalities, and there are many, many personal experiences which will illustrate how men in war feel and react. I've been very fortunate in getting Richard Attenborough, the British actor-director, to direct 'Bridge' — the story of the Battle of Arnhem is very much a part of his history. Kathryn Morgan Ryan, Cornelius' widow, has written the screen treatment, and it's one of the best I've ever seen. She'll be acting as chief technical advisor. The cast will be really international, and include some of the top names in films today — after all, there will be 69 speaking parts. Bill Goldman will be spending several months completing the script.

"People have asked me, since it's been announced that I'll be spending $15,000,000 making 'Bridge,' just how it is that I can contemplate such a venture in these times of tight money. So I tell 'em, before you have number one: You can't procrastinate — you must make decisions. On Sunday nights I can't wait for it to be Monday so I can go to the office and make decisions.

"My decisions have made money — even though the critics haven't always liked the pictures. That doesn't bother me — next time I see one of those 'Ten Best Films' lists I think I'll make up one of my own — of the 'Ten Worst Critics.'

"Whatever the critics may have said, I HAVE presented four films for which the female stars won Oscars — Sophia Loren, Julie Christie, Katharine Hepburn and Glenda Jackson. As someone said before me, 'It could only happen in America' — to which I'll add, 'Especially if you have a good Italian connection.'

"Italy has been good to me. Every time I receive a can of film with an Italian postmark, I'm like a kid at camp who just got goodies from home. After all, what red-blooded American kid wouldn't like to get a package with Sophia Loren in it?

"Sophia made 11 pictures for me — never late a day in her life, highly professional, a sweetheart.

"Those years working with Carlo Ponti were fantastic — and I hope there'll be many more to come. Carlo would come to me with an idea for a film, and tell me in a few words what it was all about. Maybe a month later I'd get a script — in Italian, of course. By the time I'd get it translated, we'd have the picture finished.

"The critics raved about '8½' when I presented it, but I never understood it myself — and neither did Fellini, because he told me so. You know what that picture was? A cocktail picture — for eggheads to sit around at cocktail parties and talk about. Personally, I avoid anything I don't understand.

"The critics raved about Katharine Hepburn in my production of 'The Lion in Winter' — and I agree with them entirely. (See, all the critics can't be wrong all the time.) Some day I'm going to have her direct a picture for me. She's a marvelous lady. When we were making 'Lion' she saved us several hundred thousand dollars. She kept everyone in line, and saw that we kept a tight production schedule. She was especially strict with Peter O'Toole. He likes to sleep late in the morning, and she goes to bed about seven and insists on an early start. She made Peter get up early — and he loved her. One time I was planning a party for the company and she demanded that it be between 5 and 8 in the evening instead of later, because she didn't want everyone coming to work late with a hangover. Kate's a great gal.

"I won't try to pretend every film I've presented has been a gem like 'Lion in Winter' — look, when you've had 492, there have to be many clunkers, and I'll be the first to admit it.

"For instance, I had a picture starring Marcello Mastroianni and Raquel Welch called 'Shoot Loud, Louder — I Don't Understand.' Nobody understood — not Marcello, Raquel, myself, the critics — or the audiences. I hid for three days after that one. But then there have been prize-winners like 'Two Women,' 'Darling,' and 'The Graduate.' On these films I've been associated with John Schlesinger, the late Vittorio de Sica, and Mike Nichols, kingpin directors all.

"And now in my new project, 'A Bridge Too Far,' I'm working closely with Prince Bernhard of the Netherlands.

Patriotic fashion stalks in shoes

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bicentennial fever has gone to the feet.

In celebration of the nation's 200th birthday, women's and children's shoes in red, white and blue step onto the scene. And designers are without inhibition in how they combine the colors. Favorite is the wedge sole with the uppers in combinations of stripes and polka dots in the tricolor.

One manufacturer pushing the theme is Famolare, which began it with a promotion run through Dayton's store in Minneapolis. That was a roller skate benefit for the Long Prairie, Minn., High School marching band, to help buy uniforms for its appearance in next January's Rose Bowl pageant.

What's doing with new styles was highlighted in New York this week with the shows of the National Shoe Retailers of America. Both domestic and imported shoes were represented.

Trends that emerged other than bicentennial colors included:

— Continuation of the bulky look for sole and heel, with soles sometimes a half inch platform and heels three inches thick;

— Wedges all over the lot, ghillie ties around the ankle, the ankle strap, and the strapped sandal;

— The sling-back pump, open except for the narrow strip of material at the upper heel. And coming on strong, the wedge with the heel entirely open. I counted one open heeled wedge with five layers of staking. A lot of the wedges are of cork or rough, woven materials.

Uppers showed in leather, synthetics, canvas and heavy crochets, these opening the foot for spring and summer. Three manufacturers in a formal showing for the press stressed the general mood of lightness of weight and walking ease despite the bulky soles and heels.

Colors other than the bright patriotics tended to neutrals, with pale beige mingled with white or black, or the whole shoe in various shades of brown.

Some manufacturers got away from the bulkies and dipped in the slim, elegant styles of the past. Designer Al Lewis went nostalgic with slim, high-heeled sandals or pumps without platforms, shoes reminiscent of movie star dress of the 1930s and early '40s.

There wasn't much talk of boots, which are more of a winter item and this was the industry's spring and summer '76 show. What few showed were just above the ankle instead of to the calf.

The American Footwear Industry Association, in Arlington, Va., said boots were not doing as well for fall and winter this year as they did last, either. For the first four months of 1975, it showed 882,000 pairs sold, compared with last year's 1,574,000 for the same quarter, a drop of 44 per cent.

Sales for the first quarter of '75 on all foot-wear is up in dollar volume because there have been some price increases, but quantities are down about eight per cent, said the association. It stressed, however, that the eight per cent price increase, at wholesale level, still trailed the wholesale rise of 12 per cent on all consumer commodities for the first quarter of '75.

Two other items to note from the New York market show: Famolare announced its "get there" walker with a copyrighted and patented wave sole is being added to the Metropolitan Museum of Art costume collection.

One way to show shoes on a fashion runway is to make the whole thing, models, bikinis and footwear, in gleaming "silver" — actually aluminum powder in olive oil smeared over the nearly naked models.

The manufacturer, Carber Enterprises, turned the task over to Jon Stevens, a jazz drummer since he was 14, a former model, and now freelancing his own productions.

"The mixture is harmless and washes right off," said Stevens of his metallic models.

Ballet hits the road

Dancers can see world from toes

LONDON (UPI) — Galina Samsova and Andre Prokovsky have a new slogan for dancers auditioning for their company — join the New London Ballet and see the world.

The 12-dancer troupe came back the last week in July for only the second time to the city whose name it bears. The rest of its life is on the road.

Not only on the road to well-known centers of the dance like Paris, New York and London. The New London goes everywhere.

Ballets in its current repertoire were first performed in Seattle, Calcutta, La Coruna, Spain, Cardiff, Wales, and Trieste, as well as London and Birmingham, England.

It has taken ballet to Baghdad, to South Africa's Pietermaritzburg and France's Carcassonne, to Fresno and Kuala Lumpur and Cairo and Cadiz.

Stalingrad-born Miss Samsova and Prokovsky broke away three years ago from the London Festival Ballet, got married and formed the New London.

They've been on the go ever since. Their idea has been to build a new group of dances with a small company of soloists, unencumbered by a corps de ballet or a massive and uneconomical company.

The company premiered two new works during its latest London appearance at Sadler's Wells: Prokovsky's "Simorgh," based on Persian myths and danced to music of traditional Iranian instruments by Boris Tjeknovian, and "Valse Nobles et Sentimentales," Ronald Hynd's languid dances to the music of Maurice Ravel.

At the end the stage was buried in flowers, hurled in disintegrating bunches by a cheering Sadler's Wells audience.

With Prokovsky sidelined by a heart ailment, Miss Samsova is more than ever the company's star and chief asset.

Once a soloist with the Kiev Ballet, she got permission during the "liberal" Khrushchev era to emigrate to Canada.

Of all the dancers who have left the Soviet Union, she is the only one who has not only gone back as a visitor but gone back to dance as a star. The Kiev invited her to dance "Swan Lake" on a visit in 1962.

She danced with the Canadian National Ballet for some years, but sealed her fame in nine years as the Festival Ballet's prima ballerina. Apart from Margot Fonteyn she is Britain's best known ballerina in Europe.

Female dentists 'mavericks'

NEW YORK — American women who become dentists tend to be part maverick but mostly traditionalist, according to a nationwide survey.

Although female dentists dramatically buck the tide by entering this profession, in many respects they hold quite conventional attitudes, the survey revealed.

Results published in a Canadian dental journal show that women dentists "seem to come from families more approving of the choice of a traditionally masculine occupation than would be expected."

However, respondents' answers to questions about careers they would recommend for young men and women gave evidence of orthodox views.

Vanilla flavor goes au naturelle

Dow Jones-Ottaway News Remember how delectable vanilla desserts used to be?

Apparently, a lot of people do, because natural vanilla — derived from the bean of a tropical orchid grown mainly in Madagascar — has grown increasingly popular as a food flavoring.

The New York-based Vanilla Information Bureau says demand for natural vanilla has risen about 16 per cent in the past two years, mostly due to greater interest in natural foods. New government labeling regulations that facilitate identification of natural ingredients also have helped.

Vanilla always has been America's favorite flavor; more than half of all ice cream is "vanilla" in some form. But artificial vanilla, or vanillin, is used much more than the real thing. A byproduct of pulp, paper or coal-tar manufacturing, vanillin became prominent in the 1930's as a less expensive substitute for natural vanilla.

By 1970, only about 15 per cent of all "vanilla" ice cream sold in the U.S. contained natural vanilla. Ice cream comprises about 60 per cent of the total market for vanilla flavorings.

A few years ago, the Vanilla Growers Association of Madagascar, known as Univanille, began a U.S. campaign to boost sales of natural vanilla. Madagascar produces about 90 per cent of the world's 3.5 million pounds of vanilla beans. The crop is grown by farmers who hand-pollinate every plant.

The sales campaign was introduced in Europe and uses as its symbol a drawing of the vanilla bean underscored with the inscription: "Contains 100 per cent real vanilla." Only producers who use real vanilla are licensed to put the symbol on their products.

Bernard Hautant, executive secretary of Univanille, says about 200 U.S. food companies have been licensed to use the vanilla mark on more than 600 brands of ice cream, yogurt, cookies, puddings and other desserts.

According to a recent survey by a trade magazine, more than half of the nation's 600 ice cream makers have adopted real vanilla flavoring in the past three years or are planning to do so soon.

Kids turn to denim for school clothes

By United Press International For back to school gear to brighten rainy days, choose waterproof vinyl boots for children in colors such as hot pink, and bright yellow, green or blue. Some come with art decals for do-it-yourself application.

The popular jeans motif goes to children's feet these days in the form of tie oxfords with vinyl uppers in faded denim color.

Real blue denim is combined with smooth finish vinyl saddles and red stitching and laces for sturdy school oxfords with crepe rubber outsoles and heels.

Earth tones of green, gold and rust figure prominently in back to school styles for girls.

Surgery for varicose veins

ARIES (March 21 to April 20) — Not much planetary help here, so day is practically your own to mold. Try to conclude long-term agreements if any are pending. Stars are generous in that respect.

TAURUS (April 21 to May 21) — Avoid overtaxing yourself — a tendency now. Temper your ambitions and desires with common sense.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21) — You may run into some complex situations. Aim to solve matters with as little red tape and fuss as possible. And this is where the ingenious Gemini really shines!

CANCER (June 22 to July 23) — Lunar influences warn against hasty decisions and expressing opinions before all facts are in or all factors understood. Day has fine potential otherwise.

LEO (July 24 to August 23) — Check and re-check before you assume something will be a good risk. In purchases, sound for hidden values — or lack of them.

VIRGO (August 24 to September 23) — Slow down to gather forces more compactly to conduct activities more adroitly. Don't deviate from preplanned undertakings for no good reason, however.

LIBRA (September 24 to October 23) — You grasp ideas easily, see benefits to be gained where others only note the obstacles. Use your instincts NOW — and go forward.

SCORPIO (October 24 to November 23) — Many demands will be made on your time and effort. There won't be an easy way to handle but, with your own optimism, originality and independence of thought, you'll find YOUR way.

SAGITTARIUS (November 23 to December 21) — Don't negate past fine efforts through thoughtlessness. Attend to all affairs in a quiet, dispassionate manner. Personal relationships should prove rewarding.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20) — Don't shirk responsibility. Accept its challenge. Especially now, when a person in authority has already become intrigued with your potentials.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19) — Your public relations accented now, with special emphasis on responses to your efforts and presentation of ideas. Curb any tendency toward aggressiveness. Win your way through tact and diplomacy.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20) — A step in the right direction can be accelerated later when footing is surer. If you do get a wrong start, switch tactics or change pace. You CAN make it!

YOU BORN TODAY are unusually independent and self-reliant; imaginative, competent in all your endeavors and magnetic of personality. As an orator, lecturer or theatrical performer, your influence could be spellbinding. You should have some form of art as an avocation if you do not choose it as a lifework — where you could succeed as a writer, painter, designer or illustrator. You have a great love of poetry but may eschew it as a career because it is not lucrative enough to bring you the luxuries you crave. You have great inner reserves of strength and are extremely courageous in the face of difficulties. Birthdate of: Izaak Walton, sportsman, writer; John Dryden, Eng. poet.

I developed varicose veins after the birth of my second child. I've been told that there is a new operation that can be done in the doctor's office.

My doctor doesn't know about this. Can you tell me more about it?

Mrs. H.H., S.C.

Dear Mrs. H.: I cannot imagine who the "authority" was who gave you this information. I know of no surgical procedure for varicose veins that can be safely performed in the doctor's office.

Operations that tie off the veins, or strip the veins, are performed for maximum safety in hospitals.

Some small varicose veins can be treated in the doctor's office by the injection method. Special drugs that are injected directly into tiny varicose veins can obliterate them.

This procedure is not an effective substitute for the more comprehensive surgical treatment used for larger and more extensive varicose vein problems.

Far too many people are tempted by shortcut, magical cures when surgery is the simplest, safest and most beneficial approach to the problem of varicose veins.

Is it necessary to cauterize the nose when there is a tendency to nose bleeds?

Mr. R.U., Nev.

Dear Mr. U.: Most nose bleeds, or "epistaxis," can be controlled by putting a large piece of absorbent cotton in the nose and firmly squeezing the nostrils.

Pressure should be kept for about 10 minutes, to allow for nature's protective clotting to occur. The cotton should be left for about half an hour so that this blood clot will not be dislocated.

Bleeding is caused by a broken blood vessel, usually about half an inch inside the nose. If the exact site of the bleeding is seen by the doctor he can cauterize this spot with silver nitrate, acetic acid or with an electric spark.

When repeated episodes of bleeding occur, there is a greater need for cauterization.

Occasionally, a large blood vessel deep inside the nose may break. Cauterization here is difficult, and nasal packing is used instead.

Do you know anything about a technique for removing wrinkles of the face by chemical peeling?

Mrs. E.L., Penn.

Dear Mrs. L.: Yes, I do. I know enough about it to warn you not to become involved in this hazardous technique.

A number of people without any special talents or medical training have tried to use the chemical "phenol" to produce peeling of the skin in order to eradicate wrinkles.

So dangerous is this procedure that legislation all over the country has barred these people from this practice.

There is only one safe way to remove wrinkles and that is by the surgical approach used by plastic surgeons.

Q. I have a wood stove that has parts which need to be rechromed. Is there any place in the area which does this type of work?

B.S., Canadensis

A. Pocono Metals Products Co. in East Stroudsburg may be able to help you, but a lot depends on the condition of your stove. If the chrome is badly rusted or if the metal is too thin to permit grinding, the job would be almost impossible. If things aren't that bad, they may be able to do the job. Give the company a call at 421-5370 and discuss the situation.

Q. We first called Blue Ridge Cable TV to be hooked up in July of 1974. We called several times thereafter, but all we ever received were excuses. The last time we called in December we were told they had no wire for the hook-up. Can you help us?

J.J.C., Stroudsburg

A. You list your address as Stroudsburg R.D. 2, but it's important to the cable company that they have something more specific. It is true Blue Ridge was out of construction equipment from December to February, which is probably the reason you weren't hooked up then. Place another call to Blue Ridge at 421-0780, describe your exact location, and they'll see what they can do for you.

Q. I wrote to Write To Know several weeks ago about a problem with my water system. The system doesn't function properly and as a result the water is dirty and yellow. Since I wrote to you a new group has taken over the water company. They visited my neighbors, but said they didn't care to fix our end of the line. Is there anything I can do?

J.L., Stroudsburg

A. From the way you describe your problem, it seems as though the faulty system is on your property. If that's the case, you're responsible for repairs. Before you undertake any repairs to the system, you might try having your water analyzed to make sure the water is contaminated because of the faulty system. There are several water analysis companies listed in the yellow pages.

Q. Could you please tell me if there is a JGE Wholesale outlet in the Wilkes-Barre Scranton area?

C.S., Stroudsburg

A. There's a JGE Wholesale store located on Rte. 6 in Eynon. If you wish to phone you can call 876-2837 or 876-4922.

Aside to all readers: Gail Gerson, president of The Heavens, responded to a question we answered recently from M.T. of Brodheadsville concerning fees for sewing. Gerson explained the type of work M.T. did as sample work which all potential employees must do to prove sewing proficiency. According to her records M.T. was paid $35 for her work and her family received a free dinner. The company spokesman we originally contacted did not mention any of this information. We've printed The Heavens' statement in the interest of fairness, but won't get any further involved in the disagreement between the company and M.T.

Aside to B.H., Readers: We contacted the attorney in charge of receivership of Croft Educational Services and don't have much good news to report. The company closed down January 1, 1975 with an overwhelming amount of debts. The money your son paid to the subscription service was used to defray daily operating expenses at the plant. Outstanding debts could run around $700,000-$80,000. The attorney estimated the estate has perhaps $100,000 in assets. In other words, you'll be lucky to get 10 cents back for every dollar your son sent in. The attorney did not discover any improper action taken by Croft's officers. It was apparently just a business that went sour. You can describe your situation and stand in line with the rest of the creditors by writing to Edward W. Cohen, receiver, 71 Granite Street, New London, Conn. 06320.

Monroe land sale reclaims tax loss

STROUDSBURG — Over 240 pieces of property were sold Friday in Monroe County's annual tax sale to recover delinquent taxes.

Of the 243 properties placed on the auction block, 211 were sold to individuals or private concerns and 32 reverted back to the county.

The 1973 real estate taxes due on the parcels of property amounted to about $53,300.

Fresh Water Highland Corp. of New York, professional tax sale buyers, purchased 128 of the properties.

Recra Del Corp., developers of Pocono Farms and Pocono Carriage Estates, was listed as owner for 22 of the parcels which were sold.

There had been 50 properties scheduled for sale but at the last minute, the delinquent taxes on 28 of those were paid. The amount of taxes paid on those properties including penalty and interest was about $34,500.

Total taxes and interest on the 22 properties belonging to Recra Del amounted to $30,200. Five of the parcels were purchased by individuals while the remaining 17 reverted back to the county.

All Recra Del-owned properties with buildings on them had the delinquent taxes paid by the time of the sale. The properties sold involved land only.

John MacGregor, spokesman for Recra Del, said Friday night the taxes were delinquent because "with the cost of money today, it is almost worthwhile to let the taxes go rather than to borrow money at 15 per cent to pay it off."

MacGregor said he couldn't comment further.

The county charges a five per cent penalty on delinquent taxes plus a half per cent per month in interest, or six per cent annually.

Robert J. Coleman, Monroe County treasurer, said the three-hour sale went smoothly. He said a property owner who had his property sold Friday has two years in which to reclaim the land.

To do so, the land owner must pay the buyer of his land the back taxes, interest and penalty, plus 15 per cent of the sale price.

On any parcels which reverted to the county, the owners have five years in which to claim them.

The 243 properties up for sale this year compares to 155 properties which were put on sale at the 1974 tax sale.

Last year 135 parcels were sold to private concerns and 19 reverted to the county. Fresh Water Highland Corp. bought 67 of the properties at the last sale.

Coleman said any property owner who wishes to redeem his property may do so once the sale is approved by the court, in approximately 60 days, he said.

Two die in Pike accidents

MILFORD — Two New Jersey residents died in separate one-car accidents in Pike County, according to state police at Milford.

Linda J. Smith, 27, of 690 Church St., Oradell, N.J. died after a 10:30 p.m. Thursday accident on U.S. Rte. 6, Dingman Township, near Sagamore Estates.

Smith was driving east bound at a high rate of speed when she lost control of her car and ran off the side of the road.

Both Smith and her passenger, Gail E. Redington, 17, of Hackensack, N.J. were thrown from the vehicle. Smith was decapitated when her body hit a guard rail.

Redington was reported in guarded condition at St. Francis Hospital, Port Jervis.

Milford Fire Department Ambulance and Rescue assisted state police.

Robin Clark, 16, of Metuchen, N.J. was pronounced dead on arrival at Wayne Memorial Hospital after a 1:15 a.m. Friday accident on Rte. 507, Palmyra Township, five miles north of Greentown.

The driver of the vehicle, Laura Veltre, 18, of Sayreville, N.J., was headed north when she failed to negotiate a right curve, ran off the road and struck a tree.

Police said the car broke in half.

All the survivors were reported to be in guarded condition.

Survivors besides the driver were Wayne Peters, 16, of Mammoth Junction, N.J.; Richard McMahon, 16, of Paulsboro, N.J. and Thomas McMahon, 13, of the same address.

Police said ambulances from Promised Land, Tafton and Newfoundland aided in transporting people to the hospital.

Falls short of state standards

Pike sewer plan needs more treatment

MILFORD — A $20,000 plan for putting sewers in Pike County is not quite up to snuff, according to an evaluation by the state Department of Environmental Resources (DER).

In a four-page letter to the Pike County Commissioners, DER officer David Lamereaux said the study does not conform with the state Sewage Facilities Act.

The plan, completed and released in June, recommends on-lot disposal systems rather than central sewerage. Glace & Glace consultants performed the study for the county.

Recognizing the need for growth patterns to develop before central sewerage is necessary, the DER had this to say about the report's on-lot disposal theory:

"We must, however, take strong issue with the development of large and expensive second home communities on unsatisfactory or marginal soils where the only and ultimate means of sewage disposal programmed is individual on-lot sewage disposal systems.

"Such a plan can only lead to environmental degradation and public health hazards to both the permanent residents and second home owners of Pike County," Lamereaux stated.

The DER also scored the Glace & Glace report on the following counts:

— For being too general and not considering variations in characteristics among Pike municipalities. "Can one honestly accept that Palmyra Township and Potter Township have the same characteristics?" the evaluation asks.

It adds that there are approximately 4,800 lots in the county located on an eighth of an acre or less. "Thus isolation distances alone would preclude the use of subsurface sewage disposal systems," DER states.

— Further studies are recommended in large developments with less than one acre lots and it is noted that in one municipality alone 83 per cent of the lots are a quarter of an acre or less.

— The conclusions of the Pike County Sewage Facilities Plan regarding total dependency on subsurface sewage disposal for both existing and proposed development, including the Lake Wallenpaupack area, conflicts with the recommendations of the Wayne County Official Plan in the Lake Wallenpaupack area.

— The Pike County plan does not address previously completed feasibility studies done by municipalities. DER said the proper approach would be to look at the previous studies and justify why they are no longer valid and why new conclusions are more appropriate.

— The study by Glace & Glace should have included the need for further study in Milford Borough where a convalescent home and building complex are proposed which would increase sewage flows.

— Matamoras Borough should update its sewage facility study of 1970.

— Population projections relating to Palmyra Township are questioned.

— Although the plan shows locations of existing sewage treatment plants, it should have included any future expansion.

Pike Commissioners received the letter Thursday, but did not release it pending review and will comment on the DER evaluation at a public session next Thursday.

The Glace & Glace study has been endorsed by Matamoras, Milford and Westfall, Milford, Palmyra and Dingman Township. It represents the official sewerage plan of the county.

Open hearing requested

Former authority staffer contests discharge

By HARRIET LEEDS
Pocono Record Reporter

EAST STROUDSBURG — A former employee of the Redevelopment Authority of Monroe County dismissed July 24 from a $10,000 a year job has requested a hearing — a move which will force into public intra-agency charges which have so far been kept under wraps.

Mrs. Jeannette Saurina, who was relocation director of the authority for more than two years, was given 15 days after receipt of the charges in which to request a hearing.

She had been dismissed by a unanimous roll-call vote of the authority board taken after the board recessed for a 25-minute executive session.

The charges leading to her dismissal have not been revealed publicly by either side.

It was learned, however, charges against Mrs. Saurina allege she made false and unfounded statements that reflected badly on the integrity of the agency.

Other allegations made were: — Failure to carry out request of the executive director. — Refusal to report whereabouts as per work rules. — Disruption of staff meetings. — Interference with the internal affairs of other agencies.

A date for the hearing will be set Monday, according to attorney George Royle, who is representing Mrs. Saurina. The hearing will be her first opportunity to respond to the charges.

Mrs. Saurina was first informed of the charges in writing after the board had voted on her dismissal. Board chairman, Elmer Christine said at the time the board was following procedures outlined by the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Royle said the hearing will be before the Redevelopment Authority board. If they do not reverse their decision, he said, the case can be appealed to court.

"The charges are general statements and do not cite particular incidents," Royle said. "We are miles apart on what the facts are."

Gov't officials cover themselves

STROUDSBURG — Errors and omissions insurance is a kind of malpractice insurance for government officials.

This kind of insurance is designed to protect township or borough officials who may be held liable for wrongful acts committed during their work.

On June 26 Gov. Milton Shapp signed legislation to enable township and borough officials to purchase errors and omissions insurance with general funds.

Previously officials could receive some protection from general liability insurance, but it wouldn't cover most wrongful acts, according to Bernard J. Giangliulo, president of H.A. Thomson Co.

Coroner rules death 'natural'

STROUDSBURG — Monroe County Coroner Daniel Warner Friday ruled the death of Arthur W. Courtwright, 78, of Stroudsburg, R.D. 5 was of natural causes.

Courtwright was apparently on the way to the mailbox outside his home when he fell between his front yard and the roadway. A passerby called an ambulance and Courtwright died while en route to the General Hospital of Monroe County, according to police.

Wrongful acts can be any actual or alleged errors, inaccurate or misleading statements or neglect by officials individually or as a group.

The most frequent claims under this insurance are for damages to landowners who were adversely affected by a zoning ordinance, he said.

"Someone may want a zoning change from a residential area to a high density area and his request is denied. If it goes to court and the decision is against the supervisors, they can be sued for the loss of his income," Giangliulo explained.

Also covered by the insurance is failure to apply for federal or state funds if they're available.

Giangliulo said this occurs "quite frequently" because township officials can miss the forms in their paperwork.

He pointed to a recent case in Butler County where officials neglected to file forms in a class action suit against Westinghouse Corp.

They could have received approximately $69,000 for filing, but were covered by their insurance, he recalled.

Other examples of errors or omissions covered are:

— Assault and battery connected with an arrest.

— Wrongfully granting or refusing to grant a permit or license.

— Showing favoritism to contractors and other professionals supplying goods and services to the municipality.

$395,000 deal transfers land

STROUDSBURG — Truco Inc. has purchased 615 acres of land for development in the West End at a cost of $395,000, according to a deed filed Friday in the Monroe County Courthouse.

The property, 170 acres in Ross Township known as Vista Estates, and 445 acres in Chestnut Hill Township known as Saddle Hill, was purchased from Leisure Equities Corp. of Bartonsville. Thomas A. Rue, president of Truco, said the tracts "will more than likely be developed since one (Vista Estates) is already an approved subdivision."

— Discrimination in hiring because of sex, race, religion, age or other basis.

The Thomson Co. has a specialty in township errors and omissions insurance and offers policies based on the township population.

Cost of insurance to a township with a population between 1,000 and 1,999 for $100,000 coverage for each loss or each insured official up to $1 million a year would be $333.

Giangliulo explained that other companies specializing in errors and omissions insurance may base their premiums on the municipality's budget.

The amount of coverage a township or borough needs varies with the amount of subdivisions, second homes and permits issued.

The insurance may also provide an indirect benefit to taxpayers.

"It protects township taxpayers from increased taxes to cover an uninsured loss," Giangliulo explained.

Phillies nip Giants on Allen's single

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Dick Allen singled home Gary Maddox with one out in the ninth inning Friday night to give the Philadelphia Phillies a 5-4 victory over the San Francisco Giants.

Maddox singled with one out, stole second and moved to third when an attempted pickoff play by Randy Moffitt went into center field. Greg Luzinski walked and Allen singled through the drawn-in infield.

Reliever Gene Garber, 9-6, got the win with Moffitt, 4-4, taking the loss.

The Giants tied the score 4-4 in the eighth. With two out Bobby Murcer walked and Mike Schmidt booted Gary Matthews' grounder for an error before Willie Montanez connected for his ninth home run of the season.

Greg Luzinski hit his 28th homer to open the second inning for Philadelphia, and the Phillies made it 2-0 when Schmidt singled, stole second and came home on pitcher Tom Underwood's two-out single to center.

Dave Cash singled, stole second, took third on a single by Maddox and scored on Luzinski's sacrifice fly to make it 3-0 in the third.

The Phillies added a fourth run in the seventh when Cash tripled to left and scored when shortstop Craig Robinson threw wild with the relay.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ron Cey drove in a pair of runs and Steve Garvey and Jimmy Wynn each hammered solo home runs Friday night, leading the Los Angeles Dodgers to a 4-3 victory over the New York Mets.

Cey picked up the game-winning hit in the eighth inning with men on second and third and one out. The Dodgers were trailing 3-2 at that point with Ken Sanders pitching in relief of Met starter Randy Tate. Cey hit a line drive single to center to score both runners.

Cardinals, 10-6

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Pitcher Bob Forsch clouted a two-run homer and batterymate Ted Simmons collected three hits, including a run-scoring single during a four-run first inning, Friday night to lead the St. Louis Cardinals to a 10-6 rout of the San Diego Padres.

The Cardinals, who had 16 hits, jumped off to a 4-0 lead in the first inning when they put together six consecutive singles. Lou Brock opened with a single and Willie Davis, Ron Fairly, Simmons, Reggie Smith and Ted Sizemore followed with hits to knock out Padres' starter Dan Spillner.

Forsch singled to open the second and made it to third when right fielder Bobby Tolan bobbled Brock's second single for an error. Davis' sacrifice fly brought home Forsch to make it 5-0.

Expos, 8-7

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Mike Jorgensen's two-run single triggered a three-run ninth inning Friday night that carried the Montreal Expos to an 8-7 triumph over the Cincinnati Reds.

Pinch-hitter Jim Lytle led off the ninth with a walk and two outs later Gary Carter singled. A wild pitch advanced both runners and Jorgensen followed with a two-run single. After an intentional pass to Larry Bittner, Larry Parrish singled home the winning run.

The Expos' rally came after the Reds had bunched four straight singles for two runs to break a 5-5 tie in the bottom of the eighth.

Cubs gain split

ATLANTA (UPI) — Pinch-hitter John Summers drove in one run with a sacrifice fly and Gene Hiser singled home another in the seventh inning Friday night to give the Chicago Cubs a 3-1 victory over the Atlanta Braves and a split of their doubleheader.

Carl Morton tossed a five-hitter to lead the Braves to a 1-0 victory in the opener.

The first two of Chicago's runs in the second game were unearned and came off starter and loser Bruce Dal Canton, 0-5.

In the seventh inning Steve Swisher was safe on Darrell Evans' two-base throwing error. Pinch-runner Bill Bonham was sacrificed to third by Rob Sperring and Summers got the run home on a sacrifice fly.

Don Kessinger followed with a single, Rick Monday walked and Hiser singled home Kessinger from second.

Soaring Orioles win sixth straight

CHICAGO (UPI) — Don Baylor banged out a single and a double, drove home one run and scored two others Friday night to keep his batting average at a .708 clip for the last six games and power the Baltimore Orioles to their sixth straight victory, 7-4, over the Chicago White Sox.

Dyar Miller, making his eighth appearance since the All-Star break, worked the final two innings for his sixth save over the stretch in which he also has two wins while starter Doyle Alexander got his fifth victory.

The Orioles chased Wilbur Wood, trying for his seventh victory, in a three-run eighth inning after Wood opened the inning by walking Baylor and Bobby Grich. Rich Gossage took over for Wood and Baylor stole second, continuing to third on Brian Downing's throwing error.

Lee May singled to score Baylor. Tony Muser ran for May and after Brooks Robinson and pinch hitter Jim Northrup flied out, Mark Belanger walked to fill the bases. Ken Singleton then singled to score Grich and Muser.

The Orioles scored twice in the second when Paul Blair singled and scored on Baylor's double. Baylor scored on May's single.

Three singles scored a run for Baltimore in the first and Dave Duncan hit his eighth homer in the sixth.

Rangers, 6-4

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Toby Harrah and pinch-hitter Roy Howell homered to highlight a five-run sixth inning Friday night which enabled the Texas Rangers to defeat the Milwaukee Brewers, 6-4.

A two-alarm fire, which broke out at 9 a. m. in a storage area beneath the lower grandstand behind the third base dugout, nearly forced cancellation of the game. Power was restored just 2 1/2 hours before the game.

Harrah hit his 15th of the season into the left field bleachers off starter Bill Travers following Len Randle's lead-off single to give Texas a 2-1 lead. After Jeff Burroughs doubled off Travers and Tom Grieve drew a walk from reliever Eduardo Rodriguez, Howell, batting for Leo Cardenas, hit Rodriguez' first pitch into the rightfield bleachers.

Rookie Jim Hughes picked up his 10th win against nine losses, but was in continual trouble as he gave up seven hits and walked four.

DETROIT (UPI) — Eric Soderholm and Lyman Bostock singled home runs in the first and second innings Friday night and the Minnesota Twins handed Detroit its 13th consecutive loss, 3-1, to tie the Tigers' club record for consecutive defeats.

Rookie Jim Hughes picked up his 10th win against nine losses, but was in continual trouble as he gave up seven hits and walked four.

Crampton's 63 shatters record, leads PGA

AKRON, Ohio (UPI) — A couple of more days like he had Friday are all Bruce Crampton needs to drive him into semi-retirement.

Crampton, one of the most active players on the pro golf tour, shattered the course record with a seven-under-par 63 to take over the second round lead in the PGA Championship by three strokes.

"Maybe if I won a few of these majors, you guys wouldn't see so much of me," the Australian veteran told a crowd of newsmen.

He's still looking for the first major title of a 19-year pro career. In the last four years he was second three times to Jack Nicklaus in one or the other of the "big four" events, so he decided last spring to do a little Nicklaus-type preparation for the Masters.

"I took the week off before the Masters to prepare," Crampton said. "And I missed the cut."

"I haven't been secure enough in the past to take time off and prepare like Jack or some of the others do," Crampton said. "I don't have the empire behind me like Nicklaus."

This summer, however, Crampton was forced to take six weeks off because of a cracked rib. He hasn't been playing all that well since returning but "I stole a fifth place in the Canadian Open."

Friday, Crampton said, was different.

"Sometimes, you just get into a streak and play well, it doesn't matter what course you're on or how hard it is," he said.

His round included nine threes and nine fours. He eagled the 500-yard second hole and chipped in for a birdie on the 625-yard 16th, and finished 36 holes at 134, six under.

Hale Irwin, who had a pretty good day of his own, a 65 that included a hole-in-one, was in second place at 137.

Nicklaus, with a record 15 major titles, the favorite here as usual and the year's leading moneywinner, shot a 68 Friday and was tied for third place at 138 with a pair of obscure, winless pros, Mark Hayes and Bob Wynn.

In three of Jack's last four major championships, the Masters and U.S. Open in 1972 and the PGA in 1973—the one in which he surpassed Bobby Jones as the all-time top winner of major titles—Crampton was the runnerup.

Crampton, the first foreign player to earn more than $1 million on the U.S. pro tour—Gary Player since has done it, too—and one of only eight players in all to win that much, suffered what doctors called a "stress fracture" of a rib under his right shoulder blade in early June.

He withdrew from the Kemper Open, laid off for six tournaments, and this is only his fourth since coming back. He put in extra concentrated work on the practice tee the past three weeks at Pleasant Valley, Canada and Westchester, and it showed on Friday.

His 63 broke the record of 64 on this 7,180-yard Firestone Country Club South course, one of the longest and most difficult tournament courses in the country, that had been set in 1968 by Don Bies and equalled since by Lanny Wadkins, Gay Brewer and Tom Weiskopf.

The 134 also matched the record for 36 holes in a stroke play PGA Championship set in 1959 by Jerry Barber.

Despite missing all that time, Crampton—a winner of the American Golf Classic on this same course in 1973—still came in here as the No. 11 money winner on the tour this year with $99,812.

Friday was an ideal day for a low score, warm but not hot and with virtually no wind, a fact that was pointed out by Weiskopf and Nicklaus, among others, when they finished play early.

"It's perfect out there," said Weiskopf, who came in at 71-141, and wound up seven shots behind.

Nicklaus was asked about the fact that when he finished, his was the only one of the "big names" on the leader board.

"Don't worry," he said. "They'll be on there before it's over."

Hayes, the first round leader with a 67, birdied two of his last five holes—"I was playing a little fast up to then, I guess because I was nervous," he said—for a 71 Friday. Wynn, three times the Ohio Open champion during his club pro years before he joined the tour five years ago, had a second straight 69.

There were two more players at one-under-par 139, Ed Dougherty, the tour rookie from Linwood, Pa., who took up the game six years ago at 21 and shot a 70 Friday, and John Schlee, the golf tour's resident astrology expert. Schlee shot 68.

Al Geiberger, the PGA winner the last time the championship was held here, in 1966, shot his second straight 70 and was tied at 140 with J.C. Snead and Maurice Ver Brugge, a 31-year-old club pro from Hillsborough, Calif., who gives lessons to Bing Crosby.

"I didn't realize it was a record," said Crampton, who missed only three fairways and one green and used just 29 putts in his superb round. "I was merely trying to do the best I could with each shot."

Crampton, who bogeyed the final hole of his first round for a one-over 71, birdied the first hole Friday from 30 feet and then got home with a three wood second shot and made a 15-footer for eagle at the second.

His only bogey of the day occurred at the fifth, a 230-yard par-3 where he buried a four-wood tee shot in a bunker.

Birdie putts of 8 and 12 feet at the eighth and ninth holes enabled Crampton to turn in 31, four under.

Bruce made another birdie at 11, a 15-footer, hit a sand wedge third shot strong, over the green at 16, and then chipped in from 20 feet for birdie, and got his last stroke of the day at 17 with a 14-foot birdie putt.

"It's an honor to be leading this championship," said Crampton, who won at Houston earlier this year, has been in the top 10 eight times in 20 starts, has a total of 15 victories on the U.S. tour—but is looking for major title No. 1.

Irwin, whose career has taken off dramatically since he won his only major, the 1974 U.S. Open, needed only 26 putts Friday.

None of them were taken on the 180-yard 12th hole where he drained a "perfect" five-iron tee shot, his first competitive hole-in-one as a pro and only the fifth ever made in a tournament at Firestone.

"I just hit a helluva shot," Irwin said. "It really looked good the whole way. It wasn't a fluke shot. It was just a great shot."

Even though he's four behind, Nicklaus is a man who may bear watching Saturday and Sunday in the final two rounds.

"I've hit the ball solidly for two days," he said Friday. "I've had a lot of really good chances to make birdies that I didn't make."

Palmer stretches 'Colgate' margin

SUNNINGDALE, England (UPI) — Sandra Palmer, the reigning U.S. Open champion and the LPGA's leading money winner, shot a two-under-par 72 Friday to take a two-stroke lead in the $86,000 Colgate European Open golf championship.

Miss Palmer, of Ft. Worth, Tex., has a 54-hole total of 211, 11-under-par, and is now favored to win the $11,000 first prize to go with the $65,458 she has earned on the tour this year.

Two shots off the pace were Susie McAllister of Beaumont, Tex., and former U.S. Open winner Donna Young of Los Angeles.

Miss McAllister, stung into action by a wasp which attacked her at the eighth hole, shot the low round of the day with a 69 while Mrs. Young, who shared the halfway lead with Miss Palmer, returned an even par 74.

Jo Ann Carner shot a 73 to be alone at 216, while Jane Blalock, Japan's Chako Higuchi and Gloria Ehret are at 219.

Miss Palmer's other victory this year was in the Winners' Circle Classic.

Golf's the game

By Joe Miegoc, Record Sports Editor

Mo-Nom-O-Nock Country Club recently held its first tournament, the first annual Mo-Nom-O-Nock Invitational Golf Tournament, with 36 players invited to compete on the challenging nine-hole layout.

Doug Price had the low gross score of 37, finishing two strokes ahead of Bob Starnie of Doylestown Country Club. Starnie took second on a match of cards with Jeff Belford of Buck Hill after both had 39.

Leon Brush, also of Buck Hill, was the low net winner with a low of 34. Gordon Guthrie was second at 35 after winning a match of cards with C.C. Harrison, also of Buck Hill. Par for the nine is 36.

Joe Viechnicki had the longest drive of the day and Emmett Davis won closest-to-the-pin honors.

Following nine serious holes, nine fun holes were played, with the players driving with their putters and putting with their drivers. Tony Cebula, the gorilla who sponsors the Highland Inn Open named after his eatery in Swiftwater, belted his putter more than 300 yards on the 330-yard eighth hole, leaving his shot 26 feet short of the green. It was measured, too.

Eddie Grandis can't hit two six-woods that far.

Speaking of tournament, the Lords Valley Women's Assn. held a novelty tournament this past week where birdies were substituted for one par-five hole, one par-four hole and one par-three hole.

Low gross winners were Flight A, Gerry Mullens; Flight B, Eileen Kadanoff and Flight C, Eleanor Kennel. Virginia Mace took low putt honors. Muriel Emery won the nine-hole tournament, with Mae Lotz winning low putts.

In the invitational tournament, held at Holiday Lanes, Peg Brennan won low gross and Mary Jane Nappin took low net honors.

Glen Brook Country Club and Pocono Farms recently added a new twist to the "home and home" golf matches a lot of clubs usually play. The two clubs used junior golfers in the match held at Glen Brook.

Seven players from each club participated and Glen Brook took a 25-2 victory in the 14-18 age bracket event. Three points were given for each individual match and the rest for the overall match.

Competing for Pocono Farms were Allan Pope, Jim Naturo, Ed Peters, Bob DeRoo, Merritt Bander, Martin Bailey and Francis Peters. Glen Brook golfers included Mike Lehman, Kent Darlington, Jeff Wilush, Bill Edinger, Mike Rugg, Steve Josephs and Jack Perkins Jr.

Wilush was medalist with a 78, with Rugg and Edinger next at 79. DeRoo had Pocono Farms' low score with an 87.

Glen Brook returns the favor by visiting the beautiful Pocono Farms layout Tuesday for a re-match.

Water Gap Country Club will hold its 16th annual women's Wolf Hollow Invitational tournament Monday with a large field of 118 golfers from New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

A shot gun start will get things underway at 9:30 a.m. and a buffet luncheon will follow completion of play.

Prizes will be awarded to players finishing with the low gross score and low net score for individuals and plaques will be presented for low gross and low net team scores.

LET'S SEE — Bruce Crampton checks out the break of a birdie putt on the ninth hole at Firestone Friday in the second round of the PGA. Crampton made the putt and a bunch of others, shot a seven-under-par 63, broke the course record and now has a three-stroke lead over Hale Irwin.

Fellow pros respect Irwin; Jack: 'Names' will surface

AKRON, Ohio (UPI) — Despite what the golf fans think, Hale Irwin says his fellow pros consider him one of the top players on the tour.

Irwin, the 1974 U.S. Open champion, who had a 65 Friday in the second round of the 57th PGA Championship at the Firestone Country Club, bristled when asked why "people" don't think of him in the same class as Nicklaus, Player, Weiskopf and others.

"The people say that," said the former University of Colorado football player. "The players don't say that. They say me and that's good. I think I've earned that respect."

Irwin, who scrambled to a two over par 72 in Thursday's first round, a round in which he hit only four fairways and seven greens, said, "I really got the most out of it," adding he thought it indicated the degree of excellence which his game has reached.

The bespectacled Irwin, who said he couldn't play at all without his glasses and gave up contacts several years ago, said he would relish the superstar status which he is apparently approaching and figures he could take the pressure which goes with it.

"That doesn't bother me," he said. "What does bother me is being away from home and that's going to be regulated. I felt like I had to go out and knock on a lot of doors. Now it's just a matter of taking advantage of the groundwork that has been laid."

"There were just some places I felt I had to take my (Open) title and subject it to other competition. But that's going to change. I love to fish and hunt and I haven't done much of either the last two years."

Irwin called his Friday round "fun."

"I got a kick out of playing today," he said. "Yesterday it was outright aggravation."

One of the things which made Friday fun and also gave him a share of the lead at the time was his first competitive hole in one as a professional.

He aced the 180-yard 12th hole, using a five iron, dropping him from even to two under.

"I just hit a hell of a shot," he said. "It looked good all the way. It was not flukey. It was just a good shot."

Jack's prediction

AKRON, Ohio (UPI) — Jack Nicklaus has faith in the long and tough Firestone Country Club course.

Nicklaus, who shot a two under par 68 in Friday's second round of the 57th PGA Championship being played at Firestone, says before it's over the same old familiar names will be your leaders.

"It's been pretty darn good players who have won here," said Nicklaus. "In every tournament you always have some lesser known players who are close."

The roster of winners at Firestone during the past several years in the annual American Golf Classic and the 1966 PGA event, includes such names as Arnold Palmer, Johnny Pott, Ken Venturi, Al Geiberger, Ray Floyd, Frank Beard, Bert Yancey, Bruce Crampton, Jim Colbert and Nicklaus himself.

This year, however, such names as Mark Hayes, Ed Dougherty, Bob Wynn, Bob Benson, Larry Hinson and Maurice Ver Brugge have been prominent on the leader board.

"But the name players will be there before it's over," said Nicklaus, whose 68 gave him a 36-hole score of 138.

Nicklaus, who is seeking his fourth PGA title, said his score put him "in good position."

"I might have played a little better today than yesterday in some respects," said the Golden Bear, who had said after Thursday's even par 70 that he had played better than his score indicated. "But, then, I didn't have to scramble as much yesterday."

Nicklaus had said prior to the start of the championship that at times he tended to be lulled to sleep by the long Firestone layout.

"I did go to work today when I needed to scramble to make pars," he said.

Although he left several putts just short on greens which most of the golfers were calling too slow, Nicklaus said he was pleased with his putting.

"I putted very solidly today," he said, "although I still had a lot of putts that didn't go. But, I made some too."

Nicklaus rolled in a six-foot putt on the final hole to save par after standing over the ball for an unusually long time, even for him.

"My concentration got broken in the middle," he explained. "But not enough to step away from the ball."

'Kiss Me Kate' in for week at Pocono Playhouse

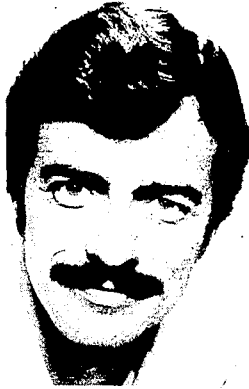

MOUNTAINHOME — "Wonderbar! Wunderbar!" ... Wonderful, as one of its songs declares.

And Shakespeare has seldom had it so good as he does in "Kiss Me Kate," opening at the Rowena Stevens Pocono Playhouse Tuesday for one week only, with Gaylea Byrne and Jay Stuart in the starring roles of this most successful of all Cole Porter musicals, which ties together the Bard's rough and tumble comedy, "The Taming of the Shrew," with a modern parallel tale of a ter-magant and her determined master.

Coming to the Playhouse with glowing reviews all along the major summer theatre circuit, "Kiss Me Kate," the longest-runner on Broadway of the fabulous tune-smith's musicals, with the book by Samuel and Bella Spewack, contains such Porter gems as the racy "Always True to You in My Fashion," the romantic "So In Love," the show-stopping dance number "Too Darn Hot," to say nothing of such

Gaylea Byrne

Jay Stuart

now golden-oldies as "Were Thine That Special Face" and the comedy's pace-setter, "Another Op'nin', Another Show."

Beautiful Broadway favorite Gaylea Byrne, last seen in the area as Eliza in the national company of "My Fair Lady," stars as Lilli Katherine. Jay Stuart, a ringer for Robert Goulet in looks with a voice to match, and recently returned from a tour of "Irene" as the leading man, takes the role of Fred Graham-Petruchio in this "play within a play," which is set in Baltimore's Ford Theatre during the tryout of the Shakespeare comedy.

Stuart portrays the star and director of this traveling troupe who finds himself in the delicious position of "power," so it would seem, over his glamorous ex-wife. She, having become an important film star without a shred of help from him, resents his "taming" spiritedly enough to prove herself well cast as the shrew.

As John Chapman, critic for the New York Daily News, summed it up after opening night, "Here is the sprightliest, handsomest and most tuneful musical imagineable... From the curtain-raiser to the finale, there isn't a number which isn't delightful!"

Gaylea Byrne is a lady in constant demand in the theatre, with credits as many as they are varied, for example, co-star billing with Peter Lupus in "Cactus Flower" and with Hans Conreid in "How The Other Half Loves." Blend in a tour with John Raitt in "Kismet" and two triumphant years on Broadway as Aldonza in "Man of La Mancha," plus a tour of Russia in "Fair Lady," and one can begin to appreciate the dimensions of her talent and versatility.

A New Yorker born and bred, Jay Stuart took his leading-man good looks and talent uptown and cashed in on Broadway, the most recent occasion placing him opposite Barbara McNair in the warmly received revival of "Pajama Game." His permanent leading lady is his wife, Sharlie, with whom he appears in many of the country's top supper clubs.

Following the engagement of "Kiss Me Kate," the Playhouse presents for one week, August 19-23, Kitty Carlisle, and Bob Wright and Joe Masiell in Cole Porter's elegant comedy goes at the turn of the century in Vienna, "You Never Know." The final show of the 29th season will be the Neil Simon comedy smash, "The Sunshine Boys," dubbed "convulsingly funny" by Variety and starring Hans Conried and one of its Broadway originals, Lou Jacobi, with voluptuous Darlene Parks assisting in the fun. The dates are August 26-30.

For reservations to performances at "Broadway in the Poconos," call the Playhouse box office (717-595-7456) or its agencies in Scranton (346-1666) at the Jermyn Motor Inn, and in Honesdale (253-1390) at Screamers Pharmacy. Playgoers in Allentown, Bethlehem, Easton and Phillipsburg may make reservations by a toll-free call to ENterprise 1-0899.

Just 'Relatively Speaking'

Former child star at Tanglwood

TAFTON — "Relatively Speaking" is perhaps one of the funniest plays I have ever worked on," says actor John Washbrook. "In fact, we often have trouble getting through rehearsals we're laughing so hard."

The Tanglwood Dinner Theatre is featuring Alan Ayckbourn's comedy "Relatively Speaking" until Aug. 17 and, according to Washbrook, it promises to highlight a most entertaining evening at the Pocono's first professional dinner theatre.

The play, by the writer of the current Broadway hit, "The Absurd Person Singular," is a comic web of mistaken identity and double meaning. Excellently written, the play is a light sex farce, very British in its quick, witty wording and humor.

It is staged by four top pros: Washbrook, Patricia Richardson, George Hall and Margaret Gwenver.

Washbrook may be a young man, but the stage is nothing new to him, for since his childhood, he has been performing. By the time he was 10 years old, he was in Hollywood on the backlots of 20th Century Fox starring as "Ken" in the television series, "My Friend Flicka." From there he went on to appear in films and other shows including "Perry Mason," "My Three Sons" and "Hazel."

John Washbrook

Since that time, he has appeared in theatres from New York to Canada to California. During the past five years since his move to New York, he has appeared in 45 different plays.

He returns to Tanglwood after last summer when he played in "Bell, Book and Candle," "The Paisley Convertible," "Play It Again, Sam," and as the lead in "Butterflies Are Free."

Patricia Richardson makes her debut at the Tanglwood Dinner Theatre in this production. She comes to the Poconos after playing on Broadway and with the national touring company of "Gypsy" with Angela Lansbury. An actress of extensive credits, some of her other roles include Cordelia in "King Lear," Polly Peachum in "Three Penny Opera" and Nancy in "Oliver!"

George Hall and Margaret Gwenver, an explosive comic duo, have played together in a number of shows including "Arms and the Man" at the Equity Library Theatre in Manhattan, "Nina," "Finishing Touches" and the "Marriage-Go-Round" at Tanglwood. Hall, a veteran actor of Broadway and TV will be recognized by many for his role on the soap opera "The Edge of Night" where he appears as "John," the Whitney butler.

Hall has appeared in over a dozen Broadway productions, and has come to Tanglwood for the season and has already charmed audiences in this season's "Finishing Touches" and "The Marriage-Go-Round."

Margaret Gwenver, one of the favorites at Tanglwood, will be finishing off her third season with the company.

'West Side Story' at Bethany Colony

HONESDALE — Bethany Colony Playhouse, located three miles north of Honesdale on Rt. 670, has announced a change in its schedule.

Appearing through August 17 will be the ever-popular "West Side Story," presented in place of "Norman, Is That You?"

"West Side Story," the musical drama that tells of love and warfare between youthful Puerto Rican and American gangs on the streets of New York, boasts a musical score by Leonard Bernstein and lyrics by Stephen Sondheim.

"West Side Story" was originally based on a conception by the celebrated choreographer, Jerome Robbins, and it is consequently a story that is told as much by tense and dynamic dances as by its words and music. Melinda Moreno is responsible for staging these acrid, sizzling dances — expressive of "cool," reckless, joyous slum life.

Craig Peralta (Tony) and Lauren Mitchell (Maria) have the leading roles of the American boy and Puerto Rican girl, whose romance steams up the racial conflict.

Melinda Moreno, Laurence Kulp, Michael Nering and Artie Shafer will have leading roles in the large cast who are under the direction of Sal Romeo.

The show's musical direction is in the hands of Joanne Kurman, and its drab but picturesque backgrounds have been designed by Mark Bachman with lighting design by Terry Cermak.

"West Side Story" will be presented by the young company from California at Bethany Colony Playhouse Wednesday through Sunday evenings at 8:30 p.m. Reservations and information are available at (717) 253-5700.

HOW TO FLY when all the airline seats are taken? This young woman from the Mason-Dixon Airshow troupe demonstrates that riding on the wing of an airplane is possible, though a bit breezy. She will perform this stunt at the Pocono Air Circus Saturday at East Stroudsburg Airport. Tickets at $2 each are on sale at the Monroe County YMCA, 809 Main St., Stroudsburg and the airport.

Air circus fun-filled

STROUDSBURG — The YMCA of Monroe County has announced that Miss Pennsylvania, Connie Harness, will appear at the Pocono Air Circus to be held today at the East Stroudsburg airport, off Business Rte. 209.

Miss Harness is from Mechanicsburg, Pa., is 20 and attends the Harrisburg Area Community College as a voice major. Currently taking a year off from her studies to complete her reign as Miss Pennsylvania, she hopes to attend the Julliard School of Music.

The Pocono Air Circus will begin at 10 a.m. with scenic air rides for visitors, and the spectacular air show will begin at 2 p.m. featuring skydivers, glider pilots and aerial acrobats. Miss Pocono, Kathy Chamon, from Scranton will also be at the Pocono Air Circus. Kathy is from Scranton, and is currently a pre-med student at the University of Scranton. She was also a runner-up in the recent Miss Pennsylvania pageant.

Connie Marsh from Levittsville, Maryland will be the only woman stunt pilot in the show. Also from Maryland will be Air Safari which consists of five skydivers from Annapolis. A demonstration by Larry Montgomery will be given on the STOL plane which is famous for its short take-offs.

Air circus benefits missionaries

EAST STROUDSBURG — The "Flying Missionaries of the Sacred Heart" in New Guinea will be the principal beneficiaries of the Pocono Air Circus to be held today at East Stroudsburg Airport. Also benefitting will be the Monroe County YMCA.

Founded in France in 1854, the Catholic Society of the Missionaries of the Sacred Heart (MSC) now totals 3,000 priests and religious brothers. The society has been involved in foreign mission work since 1880 in the South Pacific islands, Indonesia, the Philippines, China, Japan, Africa, and Latin America.

Although the U.S. branch became a full-fledged province in 1939, World War II prevented it from undertaking this work until 1946. In that year the first group of six American MSC priests went to the territory of New Guinea in order to help the German MSC missionaries there rebuild the churches, schools, and hospitals destroyed during the Japanese occupation and to fill the ranks of mission personnel depleted by war casualties.

During the past 29 years, a total of 33 priests and six brothers from the U.S. province has served in New Guinea, building up the present diocese of Kavieng, New Ireland, which covers several islands in an area of over 85,000 square miles in the northern part of the territory. Of the 21 missionaries working there now, nine priests are from Pennsylvania.

It was Christian missionaries — mainly Anglican, Roman Catholic, Methodist, Seventh Day Adventist, Baptist and Lutheran — that not only brought Christian faith and ethics to most of the two million primitive, stone-age natives of New Guinea, but also a civilizing and progressive force to these people by helping them with education, vocational training, agricultural instruction, and health care. Missionaries built churches for worship, but also schools, hospitals, sawmills, factories, roads and airstrips.

A United Nations Trust Territory since World War II, New Guinea is under the administration of Australia. Political development of the people has progressed to the point where open elections establish village councils to help govern districts and a House Assembly to rule the entire Territory.

Lack of communication between the hundreds of different villages and tribes in the area resulted in hundreds of native dialects, which bred fear and distrust, leading to savage battles, head-hunting and cannibalism.

For many years the early missionaries, like the natives, were limited to travel on foot in the dense tropical jungle or by outrigger canoe from island to island. In time a few roads were built between major towns for trucks and other vehicles, and large diesel-powered boats were introduced for long-distance shipping and transportation.

Short-wave radio gradually linked the principal mission stations. But the missionaries realized that the airplane was the ultimate need. It could shorten 20 hours of travel to 20 minutes!

Three of the first American Missionaries of the Sacred Heart assigned to New Guinea obtained pilot's licenses before going there: Father Alfred Stemper, who became the first bishop of Kavieng; Father Tony Gendusa; and Father Charles Patrick. However, they were never destined to fly their own planes. The costs of air travel during the reconstruction days after World War II were prohibitive.

But Father Tony never gave up his dream of air transportation. Together with his people he built two airstrips, chopping down trees, digging out stumps, and leveling the land by hand.

In 1966 Bishop Stemper commissioned him to obtain a plane from the U.S. After a two-year campaign Father Tony returned to New Guinea with a Cessna 336 Skymaster — to be flown by a volunteer pilot for the entire mission diocese.

Still without a plane of his own, Father Tony resumed his duties at his mission station, walking sometimes for 20 out of 24 hours from one end of his parish to another, wondering whether his people would ever have an airplane on the airstrips they had built.

Fund-raising air shows in the U.S. finally provided Father Tony with a plane for his own mission. The first one in 1969 earned enough to buy him a Cessna 206, which Jerri Mock, the first lady to fly around the world in a single-engine plane, piloted to New Ireland. Yearly air shows in the U.S. help maintain both this and Bishop Stemper's plane with fuel and spare parts.

The planes are flown by expert volunteer pilots. Besides saving hours of valuable time in transporting mission personnel and supplies as well as teachers, doctors, nurses, and others, they have a remarkable history of saving lives.

Recently, a native man of Puas on the island of Hanover was attacked by a vicious crocodile while spear-fishing with a companion. Only by thrusting his free hand into the crocodile's throat was he able to loosen its deadly grip. And although he was bleeding profusely from several wounds, he was able to swim to shore.

His companion ran for help to the mission station, which could give him only first-aid treatment. Luckily, Bishop Stemper's 336 Skymaster was at Puas that day and flew the wounded man to the hospital in Kavieng, where emergency medical care saved his life.

Tickets for the Pocono Air Circus are on sale at the Monroe County YMCA, 809 Main St., Stroudsburg and at the airport.

Sorry, Mother Nature: Dam gets own white water

By JOE RATTMAN
Pocono Record Reporter

WHITE HAVEN — Whether Mother Nature likes it or not, man is making white water conditions for canoeists on the Lehigh River in the Western Poconos.

Such manipulations of nature for recreational purposes are possible by increasing the amount of water released from Francis E. Walter Dam.

The dam is a U.S. Army Corps of Engineers' project designed for flood control purposes initially but like similar projects, the facility is a park as long as the hurricanes and heavy rains stay away.

Completed in 1961, the dam backs water up the Lehigh River seven miles making a lake available for boating and fishing. No beach is available because of lake water level fluctuations that normal weather conditions make necessary.

Next Saturday, the pool may lower slightly as water flow could be increased, depending on the condition of the Lehigh for canoeing. The Corps will be causing the second of four "white water Saturdays" planned this year.

"We store about five feet of water above our normal pool for this canoe run," said Floyd Wildrick, head dam operator. Extreme weather conditions in the days preceding each event could cause the run to be rescheduled.

At some times of the year, especially during the spring, the Lehigh swells because of heavy rains or thawing snow. By making special water releases from the dam, such conditions are recreated.

Without the release, the river likely would be placid and "it's possible you'd do more walking than canoeing," said Matthew Lauck, canoeing coordinator on the Lehigh for the Buck Ridge Club of Pitman, N.J.

White water conditions on the river extend from the dam to Jim Thorpe 20 miles downstream where the river becomes placid, meandering to its junction with the Delaware River at Easton.

Only experts should attempt to navigate in the white water, Lauck said, if open boats are used. In covered boats, intermediates should be able to handle the conditions, he said.

During the first event, kayaking was more popular than canoeing. The one-man crafts outnumbered canoes three or four to one, Lauck said.

"It was a beautiful day and everyone had a ball," Lauck said. "There must have been at least 300 people" on the river, he said, triple the normal number.

Canoeists rate the difficulty of a river on a scale from one to six. A smooth, quiet stretch of water like much of the Delaware is rated "less than one," Lauck said. On the white water Saturdays, the Lehigh is rated two or three, he said.

The U.S. Coast Guard requires wearing of life jackets. Lauck recommends that helmets be worn too. It is safest, he said, for clusters of three kayakers or canoes to run the river together so that if trouble develops, one can give assistance and the other can go for help.

"Unless they have had training, they should never go on the river by themselves," Lauck said. Several persons drowned in the Lehigh this year, he said.

The last two white water Saturdays are planned for Sept. 20 and Oct. 18. The experts, not content with flat water paddling, relish those conditions.

"Once you get into white water and that water bites you, then you want nothing else," Lauck said.

The release of 750 cubic feet per second from the dam does not hamper recreational activities in and around the storage pool behind the dam.

A large forested area owned by the federal government surrounds the dam-made lake. The area is available for sightseeing and hiking but not camping. State game lands adjoin the project and both areas are open to hunting and fishing.

Two shaded picnic areas are maintained by the Corps of Engineers near the dam site. Drinking water is available. The lake is very popular for boating and sailing. A launching ramp can be used without charge.

The number of boats on the lake is not restricted but motors may be no more than 10 horsepower.

When fishing season opens in April, the number of visitors to the project quadruples compared to the previous month. Anglers come for trout, pickerel, walleye and bass.

"We stock the reservoir with trout and the river below the dam with trout. That's federal stocking," Wildrick said. With stocking over now, most of the fishing is done by "old timers and the real fishermen," he said.

During the fall season, hunting for wild and stocked turkey, as well as deer and bear, is "terrific," Wildrick said.

Unlike Beltzville State Park, another Lehigh river basin recreation area at a Corps installation, the recreation area never has to be closed as throngs of visitors flock from nearby sweltering cities, overloading the available facilities.

Instead, the area is only shut down an average of four times each year when heavy rains necessitate raising the level of the reservoir, flooding the access road in the process.

The number of visitors to the project increased steadily until the gas shortage and recession combined to cause a decline. Yet, more than 16,000 people visited the area during the first half of July.

"If we had swimming here, we'd have to turn them away now," Wildrick said. "I don't think there will be much change in recreation (area use) until expansion plans are put into effect and that's many years away."

The proposed Pocono Art Center would occupy Corps land and state game lands near the dam. Construction of the art center is not definite as the proposal has run into opposition from several powerful political leaders.

The Walter dam and recreation area has two entrances. One is on Rte. 940 just east of the Pocono interchange of the Northeast Extension of the Pennsylvania Turnpike and exit 42 of I-80. The other is along the Bear Creek-White Haven Road.

The recreation area around the dam was added after the dam was built and for a few years it was under state jurisdiction as the Bear Creek State Park.

Because the water fluctuations interfered with recreation at times, Wildrick said, the state turned the area back over to the Corps.

When flood waters caused by Hurricane Agnes ravaged Wilkes-Barre, 15 miles to the north of the dam, water stored in the Walter reservoir was increased sharply to keep the Lehigh from flooding downstream communities. That's when the dam performed its main function.

"The recreation benefits are nil, nothing compared to the flood control benefits," Wildrick said.

Bad strike

On Dec. 22, 1938, about 650 members of the Oil Field Workers union struck the Mid-Continent Petroleum Corp. refinery in Tulsa, a strike that would not be resolved until March 21, 1940, as Tulsa became the battleground for the national oil industry's employe-management labor disputes. Violence around the refinery led to National Guard occupation of the strike zone on Christmas Eve, 1938, and the installation of command posts, machine gun emplacements and a ring of sentries.

You can't swim in this Hickory Run Park lake

WHITE HAVEN — Hickory Run State Park offers some of the most unusual sightseeing in the Poconos — a vast lake, but one of boulders, not water.

The Boulder Field, a moon-scape in the mountains, is included in the national registry of Natural Landmarks. It is an irregularly shaped rock formation, covering more than 23 acres, in the midst of an evergreen forest.

Boulders of various sizes and shapes are piled against each other at least 10 to 15 feet deep. No trees are able to root and grow between them. Most of the space between the rocks is empty but a few small pockets of silt and sand allow a few blades of grass to grow here and there.

The field is a shocking sight as it suddenly begins at the edge of the woods and just as abruptly ends, 400 feet in one direction and 1,800 feet in the other. And geologists say it has looked essentially the same for more than 20,000 years.

Located in a remote part of the park, the area of boulders can be reached by car over a rough road. Near the parking lot, the boulders are rounded. Toward the far end of the field, the boulders are more angular.

Geologists and school groups frequently visit the field, the largest of its kind in the Appalachian Mountains of the eastern United States.

The formation is thought to be of periglacial origin, meaning that it is associated with the edge of a glacier. The end moraine of the Wisconsin Ice Sheet, which is the farthest distance that soil and rocks were pushed and deposited, was located by geologists within a mile of the field.

Just as the shape of the boulders varies according to their location in the field, the type of rock changes from mainly red sandstone at the northern end to red conglomerates at the other end which contain quartz pebbles.

The rocks weigh up to several tons. Most look to be grey from a distance and as they are arranged in a broad, flat sea, they remind the observer of television pictures beamed back to earth from the moon.

Walking across the boulders is an awkward and somewhat hazardous undertaking as some of the smaller boulders are unstable and shift slightly when walked upon. It is not like rock climbing because of the flatness but occasionally hands are needed to maintain balance.

The boulders are near the headwaters of Hickory Run and water can sometimes be heard underneath them. Low rock ridges are at the north and south ends of the field. They are the probable source of the boulders that fill the field.

Over a long period of time, it is thought that repeated thawing and freezing caused boulders to break off from the rock ridges and slowly push toward the western edge of the field where the parking lot is located. During the slow movement, the boulders rubbed against each other, becoming rounded as they got further from the ridges.

This chain of events explains why the shape and composition of the boulders changes from one side of the field to the other. After the glacier receded from Pennsylvania for the last time, the movement that was taking place stopped, leaving the boulder field as it can be seen now.

Erosion of a much smaller magnitude, which occurs in all areas due to the effects of weather, is slowly allowing sand to accumulate and as the grasses between some of the boulders decay into soil, further vegetation may take root.

Over a long period of time, trees will begin to grow and the combined action of roots and weathering could break up the boulders sufficiently so that the area could become forested.

As it is now, it is a bizarre attraction, making a unique background for family snapshots and serving as an obstacle course between the parking lot and bushes of ripening blueberries.

In the forest on its perimeter, wildlife is found in greater numbers than in most parts of the state. Deer, whose native numbers were supplemented by carloads imported during the early decades of this century, are especially plentiful.

Other wildlife in the park includes bear, seen occasionally, grouse, rabbit, fox, raccoon and possum. At one time, the park was owned by the federal government and administered by the National Park Service as a Recreational Demonstration Area.

After park facilities were constructed and operated for 11 years, Hickory Run was turned over to the state.

Presently, the park, about 15,500 mostly wooded acres, offers camping, for groups or families, swimming in a lake, picnicking in spread-out, shaded areas and hiking on miles of trails.

Several streams are available for fishing, including a three-mile stretch of Mud Run open for fly fishing only. The streams are stocked with three species of trout.

The beach at Hickory Run Lake, where lifeguards are on duty daily, is open 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. Last year, a new campground was added, expanding the number of campsites in the park from 261 to 381.

This year, the campsite reservation system was altered so that only a percentage of the sites are reserved through the Ticketron computerized system.

Robert A. Kerr, park superintendent, said the change is making the reservation system work better. In addition to the family campgrounds, the park has group camp areas used by the Easter Seal Society, 4-H clubs and scouting organizations.

A youth forestry camp is an unusual facility inside the boundaries of the park. It is a rehabilitation center for delinquent teenage boys under the administration of the Department of Public Welfare.

The area that is now the park is rich in history, having been acquired by treaty in the 1700's from the Indians. One of the buildings that remains standing near the park office belonged to Isaac Gould from whose family came Jay Gould, the notorious 19th century financier who once tried to corner the gold market and who bilked investors in the Erie railroad of millions of dollars.

Hickory Run State Park and Boulder Field are reached from exit 41 of I-80, about a 50 minute ride west of Stroudsburg. A winding, narrow road leads six miles from there to the park.

Former broker cashing in on craze for colonial items

POCONO PINES — Colonial style home furnishings have long been popular and with the bicentennial celebration underway, craftsman Ray Hutton, who started making hand crafted reproductions of Colonial lamps two years ago, is benefitting from the current Colonial craze.

In the Colonial era, the first lamps to evolve were just box enclosures sheltering candles from the wind. After the technological changes of 200 years, those designs seem artistic.

Hutton traveled to museums and restored Colonial villages to research the forerunners of the modern lamp. He settled on about a dozen designs of copper and brass lamps that he now makes by hand in his workshop.

A few months ago, he started making pewterware too. The pewter Hutton uses does not contain lead, a deadly poison, as it did during Colonial times. And the only thing about Hutton's lamps that differs from the originals is that most of his are electrified.

Hutton, who quit as a food broker after 17 years to devote his full energies to the hand work, likes to do woodworking too. Making lamps absorbs most of his time though as each one takes about a day and a half to complete.

Hutton works on one lamp at a time, rejecting the production line technique used extensively in American industry. Instead, he works much like the craftsmen whose work he imitates, making each piece as he goes along — even hinges, which he could buy commercially.

The copper he uses comes in eight-foot sheets that he shears and bends to make pieces from which he builds the lamps. He uses mostly hand tools.

"I enjoy working on a lamp from beginning to the end," Hutton said. Customers suggested that he set up a production line but he rejected the idea, he said, because mass production is very boring.

"I don't want to run a factory," Hutton said. "I want to run a craft shop."

To make a lamp, Hutton starts with sketches. After cutting out the copper pieces, he puts them together using solder. Reflectors for the lamps are cut from sheets of brass. Glass windows, criss-crossed with wires, are added.

"Reflectors were very big in Colonial lamps because they were using candles," Hutton explained. "Actually, the Colonial lamp was a very simple thing. All they were trying to do was to provide a box to keep the candle from blowing out."

When Hutton finishes a lamp, he washes it in a solvent to remove all of the soldering paste, a greasy material. The solder, an alloy of lead and tin, is the same adhesive that Colonial craftsmen used.

The lamps get two more baths, in sulphuric acid and in copper sulfate, which gives them an antique brown coloration. They are finished when they are rubbed with steel wool and waxed.

"I like to work with the period between 1740 and 1825, the pre-gas era," Hutton said. During that time, tin was also used but Hutton does not use it because he prefers to work with copper.

Pewter, expensive today, was once the tableware of common folk. It is soft, scratches easily and has a low melting point. It can not be used as ovenware since it melts at 450 degrees.

Hutton takes discs of pewter, as it is very malleable and shapes it into plates. He spins the discs on a lathe, using a blunt steel tool to press the disc into the shape of the plate against a mold cast in iron or carved from maple.

A maple mold is used, Hutton said, because the wood is both very hard and the grain is close together so its outline is not transferred to the pewter.

In Colonial times, pewterers had to be in a guild, Hutton said, and all of their work was stamped with a trademark.

Hutton makes plates, goblets and cordial cups. The cups are made just as the plates but to make goblet stems, the pewter must be melted and cast in a mold.

Since there is a lot of trial and error in spinning pewter, Hutton said, he tries everything in aluminum first to avoid waste. Some people confuse the two metals and customers want pewter identified so Hutton stamps the word "pewter" in everything he makes using the metal.

Hutton has his small workshop and showroom in an A-frame cedar log cabin on Rte. 940 just west of its junction with Rte. 423 in Pocono Pines.

"This is the second business I've started," Hutton said. He started his own food brokerage office in the Philadelphia area and bought a vacation home on Lake Naomi. He didn't like the pressure of timing and scheduling involved in the job, he said, and the idea of being his own boss as an individual craftsman appealed to him. He had some experience working with metals, having been exposed to metal working for the first time in high school shop.

"I've been tinkering with metals as a hobby for over 10 years," Hutton said. He enjoys working in the metal shop full-time now, he said, because "it's mine and I'm creating something."

"I can make what I want to make," he said.

AMARILLO, Tex. (UPI) — Buster Dorrrough of Kress, Tex., pulled an 18-pound, two-ounce northern pike from Grenbelt Lake this summer to set a new Texas fish record. Dorrrough's fish was 41 and three quarters inches long and 17 inches around. It was taken by trolling an artificial lure on 20-pound test line. The previous record was for a 17-pound, five-ounce pike taken from the same lake in May.
